250 Jobs In New Plant

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

Construction of a $3 million amphibian aircraft factory started today at Victoria International Airport.

The plant, jointly funded by the federal and provincial governments, will provide 250 jobs and bring a $4 million annual payroll into the area.

It signals the beginning of an aeronautics industry in B.C., said federal Industry, Trade and Commerce Minister Jack Horner.

Horner flew in for a sod-turning ceremony also attended by Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis.

The federal minister said besides the $4 million payroll, the factory will have a tremendous spinoff effect that will benefit the entire industry.

Horner said Canada can expect export sales to be as much as $10 million annually.

He said locating the plant at Victoria airport will reduce the concentration of the aircraft industry in eastern Canada.

The new 103,000-square-foot aircraft plant will be built through the B.C. Development Corporation for Trident Aircraft Ltd with low-interest loans from both the federal department of regional economic expansion and the provincial ministry of economic development.

It is the first small craft, general aviation plant in Canada and is expected to reach peak production by 1981.

The company plans to manufacture 10 amphibian planes called Trigulls a month at a cost of between $120,000 and $150,000 each.

The Trident-designed amphibian craft is a recreational-commercial ship with a six-seat capacity the company has been working on for the past eight years, according to chief executive officer Jerry Vaverek.

Vaverek said Trident expects export sales of 67 per cent to the U.S., with Canada taking 10 per cent and the rest of the sales to buyers around the world.

Powered by a basic 300 horsepower engine, the plane cruises at 140 knots and is capable of landing on land or sea, Vaverek said.

Tax Laws to Stay, Envoy Tells U.S.

STANFORD, Calif. (CP) — Canadian Ambassador Peter Towe has warned that Canada is not prepared to bargain away its tax law on border broadcasting.

He hinted that Canada might take action against imports of U.S. records and television programs if the American broadcasting industry tries to use undue pressure.

And if U.S. legislators try to use a U.S. law affecting convention attendance in Canada to lift the Canadian restraint on advertising on U.S. border stations, they will be bound to fail, Towe told a Canadian-U.S. seminar at Stanford University.

"The logic of linking these two questions is as frail as the chance that the Canadian government will give way on a matter central to Canada's identity," Towe added as the seminar opened Wednesday.

The 1976 Canadian measure prohibits Canadian companies from making tax deductions for advertisements placed on a U.S. border television station. Towe said the measure was necessary to promote the development of Canada's broadcasting industry.

Congress this year is again considering legislation to exempt Canada from provisions of a 1976 law limiting tax deductions for attending foreign conventions to two trips a year. The law has cost Canada millions of dollars in lost tourist revenue.

Canada is concerned that, as in the past, some legislators may attempt to link U.S. action on the convention issue to Canadian action on the tax affecting border broadcasters.

U.S. broadcasters affected by the law filed a petition last year charging that the tax is unfair and seeking retaliation against Canada.

In a veiled warning, Towe noted that Canadian networks spend more than $50 million a year buying rights to U.S. television programs. In 1976, record sales in Canada totalled $300 million.

"When the border stations talk of retaliation . . . it should be made known that the balance of potential injury in the entertainment industry at least lies clearly on the American side."

Philip Habib, U.S. undersecretary of state now acting as diplomat-in-residence at Stanford, said that despite a few minor irritants, Canada-U.S. relations are "the best they have been in a long time."

Habib said the Alaska natural gas pipeline, the Great Lakes water quality agreement and a resolution of the cross-border fish dispute indicate how successful the two countries have been in "getting serious matters out of the way."

Towe said he focused on the attempt to link the tax issues because he felt that once Americans understand the Canadian point of view, "there will be no further effort . . . to use undue pressure to force Canadians to change a very important principle in our cultural policy."

False Teeth To Animals To Ashes

A ring worth $363,636 and a purse containing marijuana were also among found items.

The railroad said cash left behind in its trains and stations hit an all-time record of 2.4 billion yen ($10.9 million), up 7 percent over the previous year.

Gas-Less Weekend?

Times News Services

Buying gasoline on the weekend of May 17-20 may be difficult in many parts of the United States, including Washington state, if service station owners are successful in their plans for a "gasless weekend" to protest against federal controls on their prices.

The weekend is not only a holiday weekend in Canada, for Victoria Day, but also in the U.S. for Memorial Day.

The idea originated in California, where most dealers are expected by industry officials to participate, and since has spread to other states, including Connecticut, Illinois, Idaho, Iowa, Nevada, Louisiana and Arizona, as well as Washington, said officials of state dealer associations.

The aim of the gasolineless weekend is to force the government to loosen controls on the mark-up gasoline stations are allowed to take on sales of gasoline. That mark-up, known as "dealer margin," cannot now exceed the amount it was in May, 1973, plus three cents. Dealers also have been allowed to add small amounts to cover some other costs.

The dealers want the current system replaced with a straight 25 per cent markup over the wholesale price of gasoline.

"It wasn't our intention to hurt the public, but we don't know what else we can do," said Don Skilling, a spokesman for the California Service Station Association, which represents 2,000 of the state's 14,000 dealers.

Meanwhile, sharply higher prices for gasoline and heating oil cancelled a dramatic improvement in food costs during April as wholesale prices in the U.S. climbed 0.9 per cent — the fifth straight month of double-digit inflation.

Gasoline prices shot up 4.4 per cent, the largest rise since August, 1975, and have now surged 9.8 per cent during the past three months alone.

Furthermore, home heating oil jumped 6.7 per cent to raise the three-month increase to almost 13 per cent, a particularly gloomy statistic for northeastern states.

Gov't Wage Fight Looms

B.C.'s 38,000 government employees are prepared for a confrontation with their employer over the issue of wages during upcoming contract negotiations, a union spokesman said Wednesday.

John Fryer, general secretary of the B.C. Government Employees Union, said in an interview the majority of the union members feel they have been shortchanged in the wage department over the past two years.

At the same time, there is every indication the government is prepared to hold the line and "force another inferior settlement."

Fryer said his members are coming off two years of federal wage controls which has resulted in a serious erosion of the purchasing power of the employees' pay cheques.

Those in the private sector are getting acceptable "catch-up" settlements, he said, and there is no reason why government employees should have to settle for substandard agreements.

Although the situation could change after the May 10 election, Fryer feels the government is going to try to limit the wage increases of his members to between three and five per cent in one year.

The government is currently in negotiations with the 1,000-member B.C. Government Professional Employees Association, and its

NANAIMO BOMB SUSPECT HELD

A 31-year-old Vancouver man is to appear in provincial court in Nanaimo in connection with the bomb-threat robbery of the B.C. Ferries ticket office at Departure Bay Wednesday morning.

The suspect was arrested in a Nanaimo motel at 3:30 p.m., about five hours after a man hurled a silver-colored package into the ticket office telling the agent it was a bomb and demanding money.

He grabbed about $900 and fled in a van which police found an hour later parked on a residential street a quarter-mile from the scene.

In their search for the bandit, police brought in a helicopter, tracking dogs, and set up roadblocks on major roads leading out of the city.

$30 Million Approved For RJH Renovations

The first stage of Royal Jubilee Hospital's major renovation project will begin immediately with government approval today of close to $30 million in funding.

The provincial government has committed itself to the entire four phases of long-term project that will change virtually every aspect of the existing facility, Victoria Socred MLA Sam Bawlf said in making the announcement.

The $30 million spending announced today is in addition to $9 million for initial renovations approved by the province in February.

Assistant director of regional hospital planning, Bill Pennington, said the commission is pleasantly surprised at the extent of the initial funding.

It will allow the hospital to complete Phase I of the project including a new block for diganostic and treatment services and major renovations and expansion in other areas.

The regional hospital planning commission approved the long-term project in March and forwarded the plan to the provincial hospital programs branch for study and cost analysis.

The branch okayed the project, later approved by Health Minister Bob McClelland.

Voters Chilled

LONDON (CP) — Britons braved foul weather to vote for a new government today with final opinion polls predicting a Conservative victory, ending five years of Labor power.

Despite unseasonable chilling winds, sleet and snow, there was a brisk start when polling stations opened.

Three polls forecast margins of 5.7 to seven percentage points for Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives over Prime Minister James Callaghan's Labor party.

Midway through the voting, British bookmakers reported a rush of bets on the Conservatives to win, including one wager of 20,000 pounds ($48,000) placed with the Joe Carol betting firm.

This tightened the odds on a Tory victory. From 1 to 3 at the start of the day, they went to 1 to 6 in the afternoon, meaning a bettor would stake 6 and get back only 1, plus his stake money, if the Tories win.

London's Stock Exchange also responded to the poll forecasts and sent the Financial Times index of 30 leading industrial stocks up by 11.1 points to 555.9 at midday, topping the highest-ever close of 552.7 on April 25.

IWA, Forest Firms Angered by Article

Both sides in the B.C. forest industry contract talks have blasted the Wall Street Journal for a recent story saying the parties doubt a strike can be averted.

Forest Industrial Relations (FIR), representing 120 coast companies, labelled the story "an example of totally irresponsible journalism."

A spokesman for the International Woodworkers of America said it was "a stupid, bum story."

The story, written by Leonard Zehr, appeared in the west coast edition of the Wall Street Journal on April 19, the day preliminary negotiations began.

The headline over the story, which appeared on Page 27 said Strike Looms as Forest Products Concerns Begin Talks in B.C.

FIR spokesman Chris Crombie said today Zehr never talked to the employers' group.

Far from being negative about the negotiations, which begin in earnest on Monday, both sides have said that although they expect the talks to be tough they are optimistic a settlement can be reached at the bargaining table, Crombie said.

FIR chairman Don Saunders has written a letter to the Journal expressing that fact and labelling the story irresponsible.

He says the erroneous nature of the story is made worse by the fact that it ran in a publication of such high stature as the Journal.

Saunders also expressed concern about the damaging effect the story might have on the B.C. industry.

He said the story has been circulated internationally through the Dow Jones news wire and a confrontation story of this kind "plays into the hands of our competitors."

Saunders asked the paper for an explanation of the story and also for the publication of another article which will provide an accurate assessment of the situation.

IWA spokesman Cliff Perry said today in Vancouver: "We're concerned about it appearing in the international press because it does some damage to the industry."

He said contract talks with the industry are difficult enough without press reports predicting doom and gloom.

The IWA, said Perry, has an excellent record when it comes to succesfully negotiating contracts.

"Over the past 20 years we've been out a total of 4 weeks . . . this is something the public doesn't really appreciate."

Asbestos Expropriation

QUEBEC (CP) — Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau told the Quebec national assembly Wednesday he has been unable to come to an agreement for the purchase of Asbestos Corp. Ltd. from its United States parent firm and the government will go ahead with expropriation of the company.

Parizeau said he met with officials of General Dynamics Corp. of St. Louis last month and they had discussed a number of possibilities.

The gap between what General Dynamics was asking and Quebec's offer was too great, the minister said.

He did not say what was offered, what price-range the company considered acceptable or what compensation the government would pay to Asbestos Corp. shareholders.

General Dynamics owns 55 per cent of Asbestos Corp. shares. The government's only announced offer was $42 a share, or $62 million. General Dynamics sought $99.75 a share, or $154.5 million. The stock was trading Tuesday as high as $52.

The Canadian dollar closed at 87.17 cents U.S. Wednesday, down from Tuesday's 87.60 and traders said the Quebec government's announcement helped prompt the drop.

However, by noon today at New York the dollar had recovered somewhat and was at 87.34 U.S.

Parizeau said it would not be in the public interest to say what the government plans to pay for Asbestos Corp. under an expropriation already introduced.

He made the revelation under opposition questioning.

Responding to opposition queries suggesting that the finance minister was bluffing or trying to "blackmail" General Dynamics, Parizeau said no, the government would go ahead with expropriation.

The government is to send a notice to Asbestos Corp. advising the company which assets it plans to take over.

Parizeau did not rule out the possibility that the government could later buy an Asbestos Corp. subsidiary in Nordenheim, West Germany.

latest offer is for 3.5 per cent in the first year and 5 per cent in the second year of a two-year pact.

The association, which represents licensed professionals like engineers and foresters, is demanding 12 per cent in one year.

The final touches will be put on the BCGEU's contract package at a two-day bargaining conference in Vancouver starting Friday. Details of the employees' demands will be released Saturday.

Fryer said he expects bargaining to get under way about the middle of June. The employees contract expires July 31.

The fact that the BCGEU's number-one priority is wages has come through to Fryer during his current tour of the province.

He has held about 15 membership meetings, the latest one Wednesday night in Victoria. It was attended by about 430 government employees.

Fryer said never in the 10 years he has been associated with the government employees have they been so prepared for a set of negotiations. The meetings have been well attended and there is an increased willingness on the part of the employees to get involved.

He said members are not asking if there is a possibility of a strike this time around but are wondering which group will go off the job first.

Unlike 1977, when the BCGEU threatened to close the liquor stores, Fryer said there will be a new tactic this time around in an effort not to inconvenience the ordinary joe.

"Maybe people wouldn't mind not having their cars checked," Fryer said, refering to the government motor vehicle inspection sations.

"There are government services that are annoying to people."

Leave Bhutto: Family

ISLAMABAD (Reuter) — The family of former Pakistani premier Zulfikar Ali Bhutto opposes the exhumation of his body to end speculation over the way he died, lawyers said today.

Lawyers who visited Bhutto's widow, Nusrat, and her daughter, Benazir Bhutto, in detention Wednesday told reporters the two women do not approve of attempts to obtain court permission to exhume the body.

A local labor leader, Aftab Rabani, filed a petitition before the Lahore high court last weekend claiming Bhutto was tortured before he was hanged and demanding exhumation of the body. The court rejected the petition on technical grounds, but left Rabani free to file another one.

Rumors about Bhutto's last moments began to circulate soon after he was hanged in a Rawalpindi jail a month ago and hastily buried 1,600 kilometres (1,000 miles) away in his home province of Sind.

One version says Bhutto initially resisted his jailers and was carried out of his cell. But he is said to have walked the last few steps to the gallows.

Although demonstrations over the execution were short-lived, feelings still run high in Sind province where he is widely referred to as "Bhutto shaheed" (martyr).

Soviets Send Arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has sent 12 rocket-armed helicopter gunships to help embattled pro-Marxist government forces in Afghanistan and there are unconfirmed reports that Soviet pilots may be flying them, U.S. intelligence sources said today.

The Kremlin has between 3,000 and 4,000 Soviet advisers and technicians, about 1,000 of them military personnel, in Afghanistan as hill tribe and Islamic resistance to the pro-Marxist government in Kabul has risen, sources said.

The supplying of 12 M-124 Hind combat assault helicopters to Afghanistan would represent a step-up in Soviet aid and, some analysts say, might considerably tilt the course of fighting in eastern Afghanistan against rebel tribesmen.

Intelligence sources, asking to remain anonymous, stressed that the possible use of Soviet pilots in a combat role has not been confirmed, but is considered a possibility.

Afghan pilots have been training at Soviet helicopter schools, but it is uncertain whether they are ready yet to fly the Hind helicopters. The helicopters are heavily armed with .57-mm. rockets and machine-guns which can be used effectively against troops on the ground.

The sources said there are no other firm indications that the Soviets are planning to send in combat forces. There are divided opinions among U.S. analysts on whether the Soviet Union would become deeply involved militarily in what is shaping up as a civil war that might last a long time.

U.S. intelligence has confirmed that at least 100 Soviet citizens have been killed in the fighting and rioting so far, but they say they don't know how many were civilians and how many military personnel.

Soviet military advisers are reported serving with Afghan forces.

Gasp! They Made It

BRISBANE (AP) — Thousands of abstinent smokers in the Australian town of Maryborough reached their goal of 48 hours without a puff early today and the city's mayor and campaign sponsors said the no-smoking project was a success.

"I'm sure we've kicked the habit," said Mayor Jock Anderson, who gave up cigarettes three weeks ago to set an example.

Bill Rudder, Queensland state's cancer fund director, said the campaign had the world's attention.

"We can't determine how many have really done cold turkey but we hope at least 50 per cent of this town's smokers won't light up again," he said. There was no estimate of how many in the city of 21,523 people were smokers.

Vigilantes pounced on smokers and raised $800 in 10-cent fines from those who ignored the 48-hour no-smoking rule.

'SEXY BELLY' FLOP COSTS MD $854,000

O'HARE
... navel-gazing 'anguish'

NEW YORK (Reuter) — A jury on Wednesday ordered a prominent New York plastic surgeon to pay $854,000 to a woman who claimed he moved her belly button five centimetres off centre.

In the two week long trial, Mrs. Virginia O'Hare, 42, testified that she underwent surgery by Dr. Howard Bellin because he promised to give her "a nice, flat, sexy belly."

Instead, Mrs. O'Hare said he gave her years of anguish by moving her belly button five centimetres off centre and by leaving an ugly scar across the width of her stomach.

Following the verdict by a Manhattan Supreme Court jury of four men and two women, Mrs. O'Hare said: "I am grateful for such a fair decision. All the months of anguish I had to endure make me realize there is justice."

She sued Dr. Bellin for $1.5 million charging him with medical malpractice stemming from the operation he performed on Nov. 1, 1974.

Mrs. O'Hare said the doctor refused to visit her for several days after the operation and when he did, he ripped off her bandages and proclaimed "Here is your sexy belly," and then left.

Kenny Rogers Bags 2 Country Awards

Carson in action with Raquel Welch

Kenny Rogers, the Oak Ridge Boys and Barbara Mandrell shared top honors as the Academy of Country Music awards went prime time Wednesday with a star-studded telecast featuring more music than talk. Rogers, who walked into the Hollywood Paladium with nominations in five categories, emerged with two prizes — the top male vocalist and entertainer of the year awards. The singer's hit The Gambler already had won the country song of the year Grammy this year. Canadian Anne Murray's You Needed Me was named song of the year. Composer Randy Goodrum and publisher Bob Milsap collected the award for Miss Murray, who recently gave birth to a second child. Other winners included: Don Williams (for single record of the year — Tulsa Time); Christy Lane (top new female vocalist); John Conlee (top new male vocalist) and Eddie Dean, the singing cowboy of the 1940s and 1950s.

Johnny Carson told a cheering Tonight Show audience in Burbank, Calif., Wednesday he will not leave the late night television program in 1979, saying "I love the show . . . I would miss it." But the NBC star said nothing that would indicate he intends to complete his contract — which expires in the spring of 1981: "We are still having discussions with NBC as to how long I will remain with the show."

John Wayne was reported in stable condition today in a Los Angeles hospital intensive-care unit, following what was described as routine surgery to remove an intestinal blockage.

A man charged in a Los Angeles bank robbery has been identified by police as one of the 10 most wanted men in Canada. The man, arrested under the alias of Frank Joseph Davis, has been identified by Canadian authorities as Joseph Marcel Andre Robillard, 32, of Montreal.

Actor Dustin Hoffman has filed a negligence suit against a West Indies hotel for injuries he claims he received when a defective electric light switch gave him a shock.

Didymus Mutasa, 44, a black Rhodesian and former senior civil servant in that country, who was jailed without trial by his country's white government, has failed to persuade a British judge that Britain was at fault in allowing it to happen. Judge Sir Leslie Boreham ruled Wednesday in the High Court that Britain's colonial duties were not enforceable in law.

Natalie Wood and Peter Ustinov are in Leningrad filming the first documentary film to be made for Western television inside the city's Hermitage Museum.

New York city and state officials joined by reporters, factory workers, housewives launched a safari through darkest Brooklyn in search of an errant elephant. A tip from a "known informant" started doctors Alan Beck and Howard Levin of the city health department on a hunt through the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn on Wednesday. Beck said an elephant had been reported in the area earlier in the week. But when police arrived, all they found was some illegal cock fights. A local SPCA official said the description of the beast raises the possibility that it may be an Indian elephant, an endangered species.

Scientists Working On Viral Hepatitis Vaccine

LONDON (Reuter) — British scientists say they have taken the first step toward producing a vaccine against viral hepatitis — a disease which cannot be cured or prevented.

A British team says it has overcome the problem of growing the hepatitis virus in the laboratory and has produced a protein which might be developed into a vaccine.

The disease, which causes inflammation of the liver and in rare cases can be fatal, affects between three and 15 per cent of blood donors in Western Europe and the U.S. In some African and Asian countries up to 10 per cent of the population is affected chronically.

Writing in the science magazine Nature, Professor Ken Murray of the University of Edinburgh said his team cultured the hepatitis virus's genetic blueprint on a large scale by fusing it with a laboratory strain of bacteria.

The team found the bacteria was able to decode some information carried on the virus's genetic material to produce a protein characteristic of the hepatitis virus.

It is this protein which might form the basis of a vaccine against the disease, Professor Murray said.

The hepatitis virus can be transmitted to patients during blood transfusions or injections. There also is a high incidence of the disease in drug addicts using dirty needles and in prostitutes and male homosexuals.

The disease can cause jaundice and liver damage and has been linked by some scientists with cancer of the liver.

Viet Troops on Move

BANGKOK (UPI) — Vietnam today accused China of new armed provocations along their border and Western intelligence analysts reported Vietnamese troops in Laos moving toward China, raising tensions along the volatile frontier.

The official Vietnam News Agency said Chinese warplanes had crossed into its airspace and Peking's troops had made hit-and-run raids into Vietnamese territory.

In neighboring Laos, Vietnamese troops were moving north toward the Chinese border, apparently to reinforce Laotian defenses, Western intelligence analysts in Bangkok said.

Vietnam and the pro-Hanoi government in Laos have repeatedly said Chinese troops were massing on their borders for new assaults, but a propaganda blast by Hanoi today indicated tensions have escalated sharply.

The Vietnamese news agency said that, while making the provocations along the border, Chinese negotiators in Hanoi were "eluding the urgent measures to ensure peace and security in the border areas."

In Peking, Chinese Deputy Army Chief of Staff Wu Xiu Chuan told a visiting French military delegation Wednesday that 20,000 Chinese were killed and 50,000 Vietnamese died or were wounded in the monthlong border war that began Feb. 17. The figures were the first official Chinese statistics made public.

Analysts said it was likely Wu exaggerated Vietnam's losses, but were surprised he acknowledged the loss of 20,000 Chinese troops.

The reported incidents included intrusions by Chinese war planes, shellings by artillery, planting mines in Vietnamese territory and armed thrusts across the border by more than 100 Chinese soldiers.

Several people were reported wounded in the clashes, but none killed. "Such incidents have rendered the situation in the border areas between the two countries very tense," the agency said.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, on a tour of Asian nations, visited both Hanoi and Peking in an attempt to head off a resumption of hostilities. But Chinese Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping (Teng Hsiao-ping) was quoted as telling Waldheim Peking reserved the right to teach Hanoi "another lesson."

Nabbed at Airport

MONTREAL (UPC) — A suspect in the $3-million Ottawa postal robbery, who had been picked up and then set free on bail in Miami, has been arrested by Ottawa police.

Police said today Richard Labelle, 26, of Verdun, Que., was arrested at Dorval Airport as he stepped off an Eastern Airlines flight from New York and Miami at 7:30 p.m. PDT Wednesday.

Labelle had originally been arrested by Miami police Monday as he prepared to board a Delta Airlines flight for Montreal. He was picked up on a warrant issued by Fort Lauderdale police April 22 charging him with grand theft.

The Florida charges stemmed from the cashing of two $100 American Express cheques, American authorities said.

Social service issues

This is the second in a series of Times editorials on some of the key issues in the provincial election campaign.

The need to improve social services is traditionally an election plank of the NDP in B.C.

In the topsy-turvy world of the '79 campaign, however, the NDP is concentrating more and more on plans for industrial stategies and economic development, and it is the Social Credit government that is pushing its record in the areas of health, human resources and education.

The big social service promise of the Socreds is for a denticare program, a concept that has been talked about by both NDP and Socred governments in B.C. for almost a decade. In the speech from the throne which opened the brief legislative session before the election, the government promised that steps would be taken to introduce the program this year.

No details were given, however, and the election was called before the bill to bring in the plan was ever made public.

The result is that it is almost impossible to evaluate of the plan, other than to say that the concept is certainly a good one, endorsed in principle by all parties.

The key social service issue of the campaign has not, in fact, been any new program proposals from either party but rather the future of existing programs in the health and medicare field.

At the heart of the issue is an attempt by the Socreds earlier this year to curb spiralling health costs (already the health ministry alone eats up 28 per cent of the provincial budget) by imposing extremely strict spending increase ceilings on all the province's hospitals.

The original Socred plan was to limit the spending of each hospital in 1979 to its budget in 1978 plus five per cent. Hospitals from Fort St. John to Victoria shrieked that this was impossible without significant reductions in the quality of service. They seemed to have a good point, given that the over-all inflation rate was rising more than eight per cent per year, that they were bound by arbitrated salary agreements involving wage increases of seven per cent and more, and that they were paying as much as 15 and 20 per cent more on some imported supplies.

Just about election time, then, Health Minister Bob McClelland announced an increase in the spending ceiling from five per cent to 7.5 per cent — a much more reasonable figure — and also announced in the budget a special one-time grant of $25 million to help hospitals pay off existing deficits.

The last-minute changes have not prevented the NDP from hitting hard at the idea that the Socreds, if re-elected, would reduce the health care standards in B.C. The NDP ran for a while a particularly bizarre and distasteful radio advertisement that involved a person being unable to get help from a hospital in an emergency because of budget cutbacks — although no one has ever seriously suggested the cutbacks would have such serious effects.

The Socreds in turn have defended themselves against these charges by mentioning the new long-term care program they brought in during their term in office, the extension of the Pharmacare program, and the large amount of new hospital construction that has recently begun.

A closely-related issue, but one talked about much less by either party, is the future of medicare. As in other provinces, the fee increases given to doctors in the past few years have not been keeping up at all with inflation, and as in other provinces, B.C. doctors are beginning to threaten to begin charging their patients extra for each service rendered.

However, neither party has addressed this issue, presumably because it is not politically popular either to say they would pay doctors large fee hikes or to say they would let doctors extra-bill.

Neither of the other big social service ministries — human resources or education — have become big issues in the campaign. The behavior of Grace McCarthy in the human resources portfolio has effectively toned down the litany of complaints that formerly arose about the hardheartedness of the ministry.

In education, Conservative leader Vic Stephens is repeating his promises to remove all school taxes from property, but he still hasn't convinced many British Columbians it would be economically feasible to do so. The Socreds and NDP, perhaps with a better grasp of economic realities, are contenting themselves with a promise of an extra $100 added to the homeowners' grant.

Maybe the lack of interest in social service issues in the campaign should be taken as a tribute to both our past governments — it seems we have health, welfare, and education systems that are perceived by B.C. citizens as meeting most of the needs of the sick, aged, young and unfortunate in our communities.

ELECTION DIARY '79

For five glorious, golden minutes on Tuesday evening, the Socreds had it in the palm of their hand. The magic of 1975 was back.

As Bill Bennett walked down the centre of the Memorial Arena toward the stage, a crowd of about 3,000 stood, cheered, shouted, clapped, stamped, waved their orange and blue signs for the entire time it took him to navigate the 100 feet, shaking hands with those sitting in aisle seats. The quasi-religious fervor that characterized the Socred rallies before their 1975 election triumph was thick in the air, both oddly appealing and oddly frightening in its intensity.

The Socreds should have been able to hold that fervor, at least for the evening; perhaps — if they were very lucky — for the entire 10 days left in the 1979 election campaign.

Instead, they threw it away.

They thew it away so quickly that as Bennett was winding up his rambling 70-minute speech, the crowd was beginning to slip away, rather like the spectators that sneak out of the hockey game a few minutes early when the score is 6-1 for the visiting team.

Arena seemed full

The physical arrangements for the rally were excellently done. The arena was neatly bisected by the stage with the unused half kept in darkness. The result was that the assemblage of 3,000 made the arena look full and even crowded, although its official capacity is about 5,300.

The walls were lined with posters advertising the five Greater Victoria candidates — incumbents Sam Bawlf, Hugh Curtis, and Lyle Kahl, and newcomers Brian Smith and Mike Young. (An oddity this year is that the predominant color in the Socred posters is orange, making it rather difficult to tell them at a distance from NDP posters which also are mostly orange. Indeed, a few hecklers brought posters supporting Victoria NDP candidates Charles Barber and Gordon Hanson, but they blended right into the background of Socred placards.)

The stage was covered with pails of spring flowers. As people came into the arena, they were offered a wide choice of buttons, campaign brochures, and signs to wave.

A brass band played rousing tunes while people filed in. As the official starting time of 8 p.m. drew near, a group of models, most of them looking too young to vote, led a sign-waving parade in and out of the rows of seats on the arena floor. The rest of the crowd waved their placards and clapped in time to the music.

It was a fine beginning. There was a palpable feeling of excitement in the air. The crowd was ready to be stirred up, to commit themselves, to Believe, as emcee Eric Charman (campaign manager for Bawlf and Young in Victoria riding) opened the rally.

In what followed, however, there was little to keep the crowd stirred up. The agenda was simple: Introduction of Socred candidates and their wives by Charman (four minutes), entrance of Bennett and his wife (four minutes), national anthem (two minutes), introduction of Bennett by Charman (two minutes), speech by Bennett (70 minutes).

It's the very rare orator who can hold an audience for 70 minutes. Although Bennett's public speaking ability has improved immeasurably since the 1975 campaign, he is not yet in that category. He might have done better if he could have brought a new promise or two for Vancouver Islanders. But he didn't.

Instead, the speech was mostly a rehash of the speeches he has been reported delivering in Kelowna, Port Alberni, Cranbrook, Revelstoke. The funny one-liners tend to fall flat when most of the audience have seen them on television a couple of times before.

The only new part of the speech came within the first 15 minutes. It was a carefully veiled reference to 1960s Socred cabinet minister Ralph Loffmark, who earlier in the day had endorsed the NDP.

As the speech dragged on, the excitement oozed out of the crowd like a slow leak in a tire. After about 45 minutes, a number of people were paying more attention to the back of the arena where the hecklers were standing than to the premier.

Shouted 'uranium'

Apparently they were hoping for some fireworks, but after one minor scuffle in which an anti-nuclear protestor's sign was torn up, a couple of senior Socreds stationed themselves near the protestors. They easily managed to calm down the few overenthusiastic supporters who wanted to go after the man who shrieked the one word, "Uranium!" at regular intervals throughout the speech.

It was certainly in the Socreds' interests to leave the hecklers alone. Some of Bennett's best lines of the speech came as he responded to their jeers and questions.

At 9:22 p.m., the premier ended his speech. The crowd rushed for the exits. By 9:35, the place was virtually deserted.

One of the last people remaining was a senior NDP campaign worker who is organizing the NDP's final Victoria-area rally to be held on Sunday night, also in the arena.

What did you think of the Socred rally, he was asked. He was not unimpressed with the efficiency with which it was run. It was, he said, "a damn good dress rehearsal."

Cowichan question

I note that federal Liberal candidate David Anderson is claiming to be the only candidate taking a stand on the Cowichan estuary. He is also trying to say that if he is not elected, it shows that people here don't care about the environment. This is utter nonsense.

I have heard Jim Manly, the New Democratic Party candidate, repeatedly oppose further industrialization of the estuary. He has backed up his opposition with sound reasoning and constructive suggestions. He emphasizes the need to protect future jobs in fishing and agriculture but also points out that it is possible to accommodate industry in other ways.

NDP policy on estuaries is quite clear. It proclaims them environmentally sensitive areas that must be protected because of their food potential and importance to wildlife. NDP environmental policy, however, is integrated with a comprehensive policy program which includes an industrial strategy for jobs. Jim Manly has stated that he is committed to this comprehensive program and is not running on one issue alone.

Many of us who are concerned about the Cowichan estuary are pleased that David Anderson is taking a stand on the issue but we feel it serves no purpose to pretend he is the only one. In this regard, does anyone know what Conservative Don Taylor's position is? So far it's been head-in-the-sand — which certainly doesn't foreshadow much action by him on issues that affect our lives here in the Cowichan Valley. — Gina Douglas, Duncan.

Lamentable

Now that we are in the throes of an election, it is opportune to raise the subject of Sidney Island again. The Socreds have refused to buy the island from the present owner Jack Todd, who has more than once stated that he wants the island to go to the province and is prepared to listen to a resonable offer from the government. What does the government say? It's too much money, they say; we haven't got it to spend on buying parks.

This is the time for all citizens to take a long, hard look at the present government's parks and recreation record. It is lamentable, to put it mildly. They are seriously entertaining proposals to allow logging in our B.C. parks. We have green belt land being eroded time and time again on the pressure of developers. Sidney Island is on our doorstep — a magnificent opportunity to acquire a unique park of unequalled beauty.

But if something is not done soon, if will be lost forever. We need parks and peace and open spaces. As life continues to grow more complex and hectic around us, as lifestyles change and people struggle for adjustment in our busy urban centers, as we taxpayers pay for social workers and psychiatric counsellors to help us cope with all these problems. Why can't we buy some peace and quiet too? — M. Morris, 2255 Frost Avenue, Sidney.

Keep the library

The original Andrew Carnegie library building should not be sold, but should remain as part of our community's continuing heritage to the future.

Since it is a fine old building, one which was originally a gift to the people of Victoria, and since city council has made many wise decisions in the past to maintain and restore heritage sites, it would seem singularly inappropriate now to sell the library, a heritage site which the city already owns.

Further, since Andrew Carnegie donated this structure as a public library, a repository of knowledge, it would be most in keeping with the original intent to allow the building to continue in a similar role, perhaps as a museum or an archives open to the public.

One especially appealing idea might be to use the Carnegie Building in Victoria as a museum specifically devoted to relics of the Victorian era.

Another might be to house there the museum now contemplated for Craigdarroch Castle. This would free the castle for restoration to the purpose for which it was originally intended, that of a fine old residence. — Patricia Tilly, Victoria.

Commitment

Freckle-faced, fair-haired, robust, intellectually curious, Johnny sits before me drawing pictures and describes his family of seven fathers and three mothers. These are parents he has because he is still emotionally involved with all of them and not too sure with which he will be living next.

When I inquire about his past, he tries to tell me what was happening with each parent, but we soon discover the English language lacks proper words for such things as the second common law stepfather and the third common law sister. We give up and then eventually call them dad number one, two etc.

Johnny's history of multiple moves, multiple parents, inconsistent care and vague guidelines provides good reason why he should be active, distractible and aggressive at school. His current parents would like to believe it is all due to some food additive. They, like so may other parents, want to resolve their own guilt by blaming something more easily treatable.

When Johnny wonders who he will be living with next, I wonder with him what has happened to parents who are committed to each other.

Granted, commitment in marriage is a recently outdated concept, though it is being replaced by a determination for people individually to find themselves, it still occurs to Johnny and me that maybe commitment wasn't for couples but for children. Having treated Johnnys in the city long enough to see the children of the children, I recognize that what happened to one generation will happen in the next, only more frequently. I wonder during this year of the child, who will convince adults that marital commitment is for children. — Philip G. Ney, M.D., 1900 Richmond Avenue.

Tories have a team

It appears that the Great Debate is going to be carried on, so the television bosses are saying. I wonder how many viewers would be glued to the screen if there was an NHL game at the same time.

A debate can be very useful in determining which of three aspiring law students is deserving of a scholarship. But in politics, the winner of a debate is not necessarily the individual most qualified to be as prime minister.

Only in countries under dictatorship is the leader the only individual who makes decisions, perhaps with the help of a small clique that helps him remain in power or drops him when he no longer fulfills their purpose.

In a democratic society such as ours the prime minister is nothing more than the head of a team which takes care of the nation's business.

And the nation's business is better served when the team's members are recruited as far as possible from all parts of the country.

The same goes for successful federal-provincial relations; when premiers of all provinces and representatives of the territories and of the native peoples gather to discuss and solve problems involving the central government and the provinces in a spirit of co-operation and goodwill.

Under this team approach Joe Clark scores higher than Pierre Trudeau, regardless of debates, cliches, slogans and cover-ups. — E. J. Lattes, 432-200 Dallas Road.

More debaters

Bill Bennett keeps harping on his desire for a television debate with himself on one side and Dave Barrett, Jim Kinnaird and Bob Williams on the other side. The reason for insisting on the inclusion of Kinnaird and Williams, says Bennett, is that they determine NDP policy.

There is no proof of this assertion, but even if it were so, then surely on Bennett's side should be Robert (Nuclear Power) Bonner, Ray Williston, Robert Rogers (chairman of the board of Crown Zellerbach), Cal Knudsen (chairman of the board of MacMillan Bloedel), the president of the Mining Association of B.C., the president of the Insurance Bureau of Canada and the president of the Real Estate Association of B.C. It is these men who largely determine the policies adopted by Bill Bennett and the Socred government. Surely they, too, deserve a place on the television debate. — Edna Bowden, 8574 Aldous Terrace, Sidney

From the past

Since Bill Bennett and his party are once again spouting the same figures that they did in the last election, and since I have kept a file of some papers of that date, they are worth scanning today.

The following is from an editorial in your paper of Dec. 19, 1975: "Bennett senior left B.C. with $98 million in the kitty, Barrett has left his son with $143 million surplus cash." And: "The numerous perpetual and special funds — another peculiarly British Columbian way of squirrelling away the embarrassing excess of money — have been expanded to the total of $526.6 million from Bennett's $347.3 million." And "As the figures show (and they're audited, correct financial statements from the impartial comptroller-general of the finance department), Barrett is correct but it appeared a pretty well kept secret, even during the election campaign when the NDP had much to be proud of." And: "We hope premier-elect Bill Bennett emulates the practice initiated by Barrett — as often as possible."

Assets of Crown corporations had increased 49 per cent, special and perpetual funds 52 per cent, cash reserves 46 per cent and the direct provincial debt decreased 44 per cent under the NDP.

Another heading from a Times editorial, Outrageous Political Stunt outlines the so-called Clarkson Gordon report.

Some other pertinent headings from the papers of those days may also be informative. Ambulance Escorts Cut, Government slashes 60% off Hospital Costs, Gas Tax Repeal $6 Million Giveaway.

And add these little goodies. "Personal income tax increased 32.5 per cent. Medicare premiums increased 50 per cent. Hospitalization rates increased 400 to 700 per cent. Tobacco and cigarette tax increased four cents for pack of 25. Camping ground rates doubled."

I have a great deal more but the above should show the people the sort of gobbledygook that got the Socreds elected last time and teach them not to believe all they are hearing now!

Finally, from the Times editorial of Dec. 8, 1975: "Indeed it is hard to fault the NDP on their social policies and demonstrated leadership." — P. Simpson, 2536 Forbes Street.

The Times wishes to announce to its readers that no letters to the editor concerning the provincial election will be accepted after Saturday. Deadline for letters concerning the federal election will be Tuesday, May 15.

Union impropriety

With the Socialist Party of Canada too weak to field any candidates in either the current provincial or federal contest, socialists are reduced to observing a race where only the capitalist class can win. Nevertheless, socialists can salvage a modicum of amusement from the aspect of the various factions exposing each others' inter-party collusions and threats.

There is, however, one impropriety that seems to be ignored.

A visit to many union offices will reveal that their facilities look more like an NDP headquarters than those of a union. How could such a phenomenon occur when it is obvious that a majority of union members do not belong to the NDP or even vote for it. It is quite clear that it is a majority of the combined union executives who advocate supporting the NDP, not the membership.

Due to the secrecy oath of many unions, union members must use caution when discussing this subject so as not to further jeopardize themselves with their union.

If union members were not so restrained, I suspect that a great number of them would reveal there was never a vote at the local level to support the NDP and that there are instances where, despite combined arguments of the executive to the contrary, the membership voted quite clearly against any financial support going to any politician.

For many union executives, however, their present practices may backfire on them. They seem to have been rather foolhardy in heavily dumping their eggs into one basket. After numerous painful experiences many of their contemporaries had concluded that the union vote could not be delivered.

Another obvious fact seems to be lost on these executives: As a bargaining agent in the wage struggle they must, of necessity, represent all workers in this economic battle. It therefore follows, should they be unwise enough to attempt a union political stance, they are bound to have members who are antagonistic to that stance — whatever it be.

More mature means should be found to encourage working class political participation, although it is doubtful that this is what most present union executives desire. — Larry Tickner, 589 Nora Place.

No on N-power

Premier Bennett tells us that a Socred government would not use nuclear power for "many years." That's the sort of weak commitment to the people of this province that we've come to expect.

The publicity surrounding the nuclear energy issue has masked the Socreds' similarly disgraceful stand on uranium mining. Bennett's government has refused to declare a moratorium on uranium mining, even until his own royal commission has reported on the issue.

The continued exploration and proposed mining of uranium at several B.C. locations poses an immediate threat to the health and safety of thousands of B.C. residents. Mining in the Thompson watershed would be a potential disaster for the whole Fraser River salmon run. Just witness the environmental disaster at Elliot Lake in Ontario. Revenues from uranium mines could not possibly compensate us for such damage.

Full marks must be given to the NDP for their stand on both the mining and power issues — no mines and no reactors. It's the only policy that makes sense to British Columbians. — David Rice, 764 Claremont Avenue.

Your responsibility

Prime Minister Trudeau has stated that the main issue in Canada today is national unity and that it is inconceivable that Canadians would not consider this a top priority.

Now, here is my question to the electorate: Do you want the revision of the constitution of Canada negotiated by an anglophone or a francophone?

The voters must take responsibility for their decision at the polls on May 22. Don't be surprised if you find later on that constitutional power has passed to the province of Quebec. — Mrs. Marcel Richard, 902-1120 Beach Drive.

New managers

The Social Credit government has made a big point of its generosity in handing out to the people of British Columbia the so-called free BCRIC shares. They say: "These are yours — they belong to the people of this province. It's the people's right to share in their own resources."

Leaving aside the fact that the resources corporation belonged to all of the people anyway, the impression this is supposed to leave is one of a government which wants the people to share the management of the province. But meanwhile, back at the ranch, just what has been happening over the past three years of Social Credit government?

Instead of respecting the democratic process and the right of the people to have a voice in government, the Socreds have brought in legislation in the field of municipal affairs which allows the minister to overrule decisions reached by majority vote on municipal councils. So if the people who elect local aldermen in the expectation of achieving certain objectives, based on the candidates' platform speeches, find that democratic decisions made by duly elected representatives can be changed on the whim of the minister, where does that leave their share in the management of the province?

And, on the same topic, there is now no longer any need for councils to have a two-thirds majority in order to make long-lasting zoning decisions. One single vote is enough, so the safeguards have gone.

All this from a government which makes pretty speeches about people participation. I believe that the shareholders in this province — that's you and me — should elect a new board of management. — R. A. and P. C. Bompas, 1932 Mount Newton X Road.

Out of line

The fare on the E and N Railway from Cobble Hill to Duncan is $4. Bus fare for the same distance is 80 cents.

I am a commuter and travel on the dayliner frequently. The difference in cost is out of line. I recall two years ago the cost was $1.15.

I also recall that Premier Bennett, Hugh Curtis and opposition leader Mr. Barrett travelled on same train, at different times.

Shortly after, fares were increased. — R. D. Engelson, 1270 Hutchinson Road, Cobble Hill.

Promises to labor

When the NDP is returned to power on May 10, will they bring in legislation to make the union shop mandatory in British Columbia, or otherwise increase existing union power?

Why would they even consider such action? First, because the Waffle Manifesto was sponsored by no fewer than five prominent members of the 1973 NDP cabinet. Secondly, because the manifesto reads: "The achievement of socialism awaits the building of a mass base of socialists, in factories and offices, on farms and campuses." Thirdly, because it also reads: "The revitalization and extension of the labor movement would involve a fundamental democratization of our society." Fourthly, because union support for a political party has to be repaid.

By act of the legislature, the "mass base of socialists" would have been created. Many people, not seeing the political direction in which they were being led, might welcome the protection against inflation that union membership would at first give them. Most would simply follow the crowd. It is a fact that socialist institutions create socialists. The unions would have been repaid because union revenues and union power would increase enormously. Our unions would become as powerful as those in Britain.

Socialism ruined Britain. Are you going to help it do the same to British Columbia? — Peter Gage, 308-250 Douglas Street.

Good government

Teck Corp. as stated in the Times of April 25 plans a $150 million development in B.C. Norman Keevil, the president of Teck, is concerned that the project may be threatened if the NDP comes to power again.

Could it be that the NDP hopes the public has a short memory? I suggest to the people who have applied for the five shares in BCRIC to ask for a prospectus, and turn to page 14 and see what the NDP government received for exploration and development rights for oil and gas for the years of NDP rule.

In 1974 the amount was $23 million; in 1975, $12.7 million. In 1976, the first full year of our present goverment, the provincial coffers were enriched by $43.2 million and in 1978 by $177.5 millions.

The above figures represent full disclosure as required under the Securities Act of B.C. Total oil and gas wells drilled in 1974 were 147 and in 1978, 408.

In 1976, the first full year of the Social Credit government, some hard and unpopular decisions had to be made. One was to balance the books and clear off the large deficit left under the NDP, and we are still paying for it. Yes, ferry rates were increased, but the mistake was made years ago as they should have been increased gradually. You don't build a ferry in 1979 for the same cost as in 1969.

The present government record speaks for itself, a government doing things for people. For example, long term care for the aged, increased hospital construction, revenue sharing with the municipalities to ease the burden of non-tax paying government buildings, $25 million to the hospitals to clear off their deficit and the second lowest provincial income tax rate in Canada next to Alerta, when the budget is enacted. The SAFER plan, increased homeowner grant, etc.

Above all, we have had good government for all and not for a selected few. The NDP killed exploration and development between 1973 and 1975 inclusive. Don't let it happen again! — Ted Wicken, 3938 Shorncliffe Road North.

The real impact of tax deductions

LEONARD SHIFRIN

OTTAWA — Participants in a recent conference on tax expenditures at Toronto's Osgoode Hall Law School found a copy of the U.S. government's current tax expenditure budget in their kits when they registered.

By thumbing through it they could discover the cost to the treasury of each of the 97 tax-break provisions in the American income tax code. They could learn that research and development incentives, for example, will mean a revenue loss of $1.6 billion this year, and that the parental exemption for student dependants will cost Washington $935 million.

According to one participant, McGill University economics professor and former cabinet minister Eric Kierans, the tax expenditure budget "is the most important innovation in public finance in the past 30 years."

While it doesn't yet exist in Canada, the tenor of the conference — and the large number of government officials in attendance — suggested that it probably will before long.

"The items in the tax expenditure budget", said keynote speaker Stanley Surrey, the former U.S. Assistant Treasury Secretary who presented the first such budget to Congress a decade ago, "though clothed in tax language, are really spending programs." To ignore them is to ignore a large part of government spending.

Once that is recognized, he said, then the questions to be asked of any proposed tax expenditure "become typically budgetary questions: Should funds be spent for this particular purpose, and how much?"

Later in the conference, at the session on housing, University of Connecticut law professor Richard Pomp ruefully noted that the worst excesses of the U.S. tax code were already in place before this sort of analysis came along.

Deductibility of mortgage interest and property tax — the features of the U.S. tax system that Joe Clark wants to bring to Canada — cost the treasury four times as much as all the housing programs operated by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, said Pomp. "Our Commissioner of Internal Revenue substantially outspends our Secretary of HUD on housing programs."

The question Canadians should ask themselves about the deductibility proposals, he said, is "if a $3 billion housing assistance program were proposed in the form of grants, with tenants and poor homeowners to receive nothing and the richer you were the more you got, would it have have a serious chance of being enacted?"

Bob Jarvis, a local Conservative candidate sent to represent his party after a number of its better-known spokesmen begged off, contended that the Clark proposal should not be viewed as a housing program, but rather as an economic stimulus measure.

While conceding that the distribution of benefits would "not be fully equitable", he predicted that the measure would result in 40,000 to 60,000 additional housing starts, thus boosting employment in both the building industry and the construction materials industry.

But as York University economist George Fallis was quick to point out, if that is the objective, then the deductibility proposal is an immensely inefficient way of going about it.

"A program targetted to new home-buyers could provide ten times the stimulus for one-tenth the cost," he declared, noting that the overwhelming preponderance of benefits from the Clark proposal will go to those who are already homeowners.

They may buy a car or a stereo with the money, he said, or they may go to Florida with it; but such expenditures are not going to stimulate the housing industry.

If there was anyone at the conference opposed to Canada's adopting the practice of annual presentations of tax expenditure as well as direct expenditure budgets — apart, perhaps, from candidate Jarvis who attended only the housing session — the dissenter failed to make himself known.

Although several speakers foresaw problems in determining what should be on the list and estimating their cost, others noted that this information is already provided on budget night for new measures. What is lacking is a cumulative statement of all such ongoing provisions.

Dinner was kept waiting

Clark gains confidence on the Maritimes circuit

By ALLAN FOTHERINGHAM

HALIFAX — The foghorn off the harbor played counterpoint with the bagpipes in the hall. The name of the pretty girl checking guests at the door was — what else? — Fiona MacLeod.

In short, the kid from High River was down among the clan in yet another little media kidnap plot that chewed away a bit more at the tattered Liberal campaign machine that seems to be coming unstuck around the edges.

What would Joe Clark be doing at a fund-raising dinner on a Sunday night in the portion of the world where they still go to church and find it hard to stay awake for The National?

Well, some astute office boy in the Clark entourage re-called that the three national leaders have been making a practice of retreating to their Ottawa lairs every weekend, resting their tonsils and cliches each Sunday and setting out on the great silver bird every Monday morning. It means, alas, that the scribes and pundits whose pointed little heads have been worn to a nub have nothing to fill their papers and microphones with. Monday is Snooze City. Why not, reasoned the Clarkophiles, steal a march and make some Monday headlines?

It's why 926 faithful Tories in the ballroom of the Nova Scotian Hotel had to listen to their own stomachs growling — a rumbling that silenced the bagpipes and was taking on the foghorn — by the time they got to eat.

Dinner had been advertised for 7 p.m. but, you see, if the man who wants to be prime minister is going to haul 51 members of the press from Ottawa to Halifax on a Sunday afternoon and thus alienate their wives even more, one musn't alienate their editors too.

So the Clark people — to allow reporters to make the deadlines that would transform into Monday morning stories — had Clark speak before the dinner, the hungry Conservatives with only the lonely olives and cucumber slices staring at them. The chicken with wild rice had to cool in the kitchen, a small culinary sacrifice to pay for a Tory coup in a campaign that is being waged for the hearts and minds of the journalists — the voters presumably to follow at some appropriate stage.

Not to worry, Sir John A., it was all worth it, as the nervous Clark continues to grow in confidence with less than three merciful weeks left. If he needed any, just before he climbed upon his hind legs his aides were slipped the results of the latest CTV poll showing — if you subtract the Quebec imbalance — that the Tories indeed are ahead across the country, a belief that squares with most reporters.

Clark is nearing such ebullience that he spent the first five minutes ridiculing Pierre Trudeau to great effect. Georgie Jessel he ain't, but the Liberals are providing him with all his straight lines free — dumping on farmers and the unemployed, musing about hanging onto power even if defeated.

As the good Halifax lawyers, their minds dancing with sugarplum notions of government briefs and commissions, waited patiently for their groceries, Clark had time to revel in his momentum. Although the Tories hold just 15 of the 32 seats at stake in the Atlantic provinces, he now owns all four provincial premiers. If a tide is running in this slow-moving section of the realm, it certainly doesn't seem to be moving away from the Tories.

There is, of course, the standard appeal to the upper middle class that Clark aims at: corporate tax exemptions for new industry in this economically-tacititurn area. The pledge drew long applause, just as did a similar pledge — tax exemptions for investors in Canadian companies — from a very similar lawyerish crowd in Vancouver several stops and promises back.

If Joe Clark, who almost seems surprised at his own aggressiveness these days, needed some support he got it from the usually bashful Robert Stanfield, who sounded like a full-blooded Eugene Whalen at the end and said he had watched Clark with pride for years and, "I've never been prouder of you than I have been tonight."

Clark, so used to being stabbed in the front, back and sides by his fractious party, appeared almost stunned at the forthright pat on the back and sat down to his chicken — his ploy, his headlines and his stomach satisfied.

today's markets

Toronto

Trading in Coseka Resources Ltd. resumed at 11 a.m. following a halt called at the opening. The company said previously-announced discussions with Brinco Ltd. on a possible combination of assets of the two companies have terminated. Coseka's stock fell ¾ to $7¼ by 2 p.m.

Trading was also halted at the opening in shares of Brinco and Conuco Ltd. They resumed trading at 1 p.m. Brinco said it has agreed in principle to merge with Conuco. By 2 p.m., Brinco rose ¼ to $7⅜ and Conuco fell ¼ to $6.

New York

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks gained 3.72 to 859.23 two-thirds of the way through the trading day. The index closed unchanged Wednesday.

Casino and gambling stocks were among the stand-out issues.

Ramada Inns, up ⅛ to $14, topped the NYSE active trading list. The firm said its proposal for an Atlantic City, N.J. casino had been approved by the city planning council.

Holiday Inns, gained ⅜ to $21, and Caesars World jumped 4 to $78¼, also in active trading. Among less active casino issues, Bally rose 1 to $78¾. The maker of casino equipment said its stockholders approved a 2-for-1 stock split.

Among other issues, General Public Utilities slipped ⅛ to $10⅝.

London

The Financial Times index of 30 industrials closed at 553.5, up 8.7. Dealers said profit-taking reduced some stock prices, which had been pushed higher on speculative demand prompted by opinion polls indicating a win for the Conservative party in Thursday's general election.

Banks and industrials rose sharply while golds were narrowly higher.

Canadian shares were mixed.

Now Eldor Buys Into Key Lake

REGINA (CP) — Eldor Resources Ltd., the wholly-owned subsidiary of the federal Crown corporation Eldorado Nuclear Ltd., has agreed to pay $95.1 million to acquire a one-sixth interest in the Key Lake uranium mining project and other properties formerly held by Inexco Mining Co. (Canada) Ltd.

Key Lake is in northern Saskatchewan.

The transaction took place after Denizon Mines Ltd. offered Inexco $158.5 million to acquire its one-third interest in the Key Lake uranium project, which has identified reserves of at least 100 million pounds of uranium oxide.

Inexco, a subsidiary of Texas-based oil interests, was in a three-way equal partnership to develop the property with Uranerz Exploration and Mining Company and the Saskatchewan Mining and Development Corp.

Seminar Draws Brass

TORONTO (CP) — Company executives who attended a recent seminar entitled Strategies to Stay Union Free were told how to create good industrial environments in their plants.

Employers paid $550 each to attend the two-day seminar organized by Advanced Management Research (AMR), a firm based in the United States.

Despite criticism from labor organizers that the seminars advocate unfair methods, Toronto lawyer Michael Gordon, one of two faculty leaders at AMR conferences in Canada, said unfair labor practices were not part of the seminar program.

"In 99 per cent of the cases, if a company gets a union the firm has asked for it by not dealing fairly with the employees or positively with their needs," Gordon said.

Invitations to the seminar, addressed only to management and supervisory personnel, said: "If your company or organization is non-union, it's in your best interest to stay that way."

The invitation also warns businessmen that if employees organize, "you will lose the right to manage your own business."

Loffmark's NDP Switch Is Sour Grapes: Phillips

NANAIMO (CP) — A former Social Credit cabinet minister is aligning himself with the NDP because of "sour grapes," Industrial Development Minister Don Phillips said Wednesday.

Phillips said in a telephone interview rejection of a proposal by Ralph Loffmark to establish a government-owned airline with himself as chief executive officer led to Loffmark's recent criticism of Premier Bill Bennett.

Phillips said he rejected Loffmark's proposal that the government buy AirWest, Harrison Airways and West Coast Air in 1976. A Vancouver-based company, the Jim Pattison Group, recently bought AirWest and Pacific Coastal Airlines.

"I am well aware of Loffmark's record as a teacher at the University of B.C.," said Phillips. I understand that he is a brilliant academic, but he didn't strike me as having the necessary practical experience to run an airline.

"He is more of the ivory tower type with excellent theory but not much practical experience in the actual marketplace. I dismiss his statements on the premier and his support of the NDP leader as sour grapes."

Loffmark, currently an economics professor at UBC, is a chartered accountant, a lawyer, and has a master's degree in business administration.

He was first elected to the provincial legislature in 1963. He was minister of industrial development, trade and commerce from 1964 to 1968, and was minister of health services and hospital insurance from 1968 until his defeat in the 1972 provincial election which elected the NDP to government.

Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis also criticized Loffmark's statements praising Barrett.

"He (Loffmark) was one of the original reasons why I could never have joined the former government," said Curtis, a former alderman and mayor of Saanich, and a former president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, who was first elected to the legislature in 1972.

Tothill Wants TV Debate

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Liberal leader Jev Tothill has challenged a former Socred cabinet minister to a one-on-one public debate in the provincial riding of North Vancouver-Seymour.

Tothill, without a seat in the last B.C. legislature after assuming provincial leadership of the Liberals in February, issued the challenge Wednesday to Jack Davis, the Socred candidate in the May 10 provincial election.

The riding was held by the NDP's Colin Gabelmann prior to the 1975 B.C. election when the seat was taken by Davis.

U.S. Meddling in Vote

VANCOUVER (CP) — The intrusion of a U.S.-based union into the May 10 provincial election campaign has been denounced by Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm.

The minister released a copy of a letter addressed to members of the International Brotherhood of Painters and Allied Workers. The letter, from Washington, bears the signature of general president S. Frank Rafferty of the union.

The letter calls on union members to vote against Social Credit in the provincial election on the grounds that a bill of rights proposed in the Throne Speech will include a right-to-work provision.

Vander Zalm said he thinks British Columbians should be furious to find they are being dictated to by the president of an international union. He said that Rafferty is a friend of NDP leader Dave Barrett.

Barrett brushed aside Vander Zalm's claim as "ridiculous" and said he does not know Rafferty.

The NDP leader said he has never spoken to Rafferty and certainly did not ask for any letter to be sent to B.C.

Socred Denies Report Doctored

B.C. '79

A claim by Conservative leader Vic Stephens that a legislative committee report on B.C. Hydro activities was changed to avoid political embarrassment, has been denied by the committee chairman.

"It was an all-party committee report put together to report the facts — and that's what we did," says Jack Kempf, Social Credit election candidate for the central interior Omenica riding.

Kempf was the chairman of an all-party legislative committee on Crown corporations which published a recently-released report on Hydro policies and administration.

Earlier Wednesday, Stephens had called a press conference to claim that the report the committee issued was "doctored" and a watered-down version of an earlier draft.

The original report accused two former Hydro chairmen and a former lands and forests minister in the previous NDP government of misrepresentation and political interference in various dealings with the Crown corporation, Stephens said.

"They did it to save themselves political embarrassament," Stephens charged, adding that the committee "obviously thought there was some evidence of wrongdoing."

But the Socreds and the New Democrats have found it advantageous not to "rock each others" boats," he said.

The report on the inquiry into Hydro activities was released last week by the committee, of which Stephens was the only Conservative member.

Stephens said the earlier version of the report contained "serious allegations" against former Hydro chairmen Gordon Shrum and David Cass-Beggs and against former NDP Lands and Forests Minister Robert Williams.

It accused Shrum of awarding a contract to build the Mica dam power house without the consent of Hydro directors; Cass-Beggs of misleading the Hydro board; and Williams of putting pressure on the board while he was the minister responsible for Hydro activities, Stephens said..

But the committee changed the report and issued a second version in which he names of the three men had been removed, he charged.

Saying that Stephens was "totally irresponsible" in making the accusation, Kempf added: "And this coming from a man who rarely attended the committee meetings."

Shrum denied Stephens' allegation and said he had never bypassed the Hydro board because "it would have been impossible to award any company a contract without getting the board's consent."

Everything was "above board" when he called for bids on the Mica dam power house, Shrum said.

"I would be very unhappy if the report contained allegations about me which I wasn't given the chance to answer," Shrum said.

"Stephens is saying the committee took my name out of the report to protect me, but I think they were only protecting themselves," he said.

Socreds Sign Up a Posse

VANCOUVER (CP) — Social Credit campaign workers would like to call on The Shadow to find out who is hitting their political signs with eggs, paint, matches and brute force.

The Shadow, unfortunately, isn't available for duty and the provincial Socreds are resorting to using a 200-person citizens band radio patrol to combat their mysterious tormentors.

Social Credit campaign manager Dan Campbell said Tuesday that citizen band buffs will patrol the Greater Vancouver area, spreading their protective wings over all political signs.

"We've asked them to keep an eye on all political signs," said Campbell, "not just Social Credit, because we don't believe vandalism is a way to conduct any political campaign."

Signs have been splashed, splattered, burned, hacked and even removed. Social Credit hopes that the citizen band patrol will help police with descriptions of vandals and appear in court as witnesses if charges are laid.

Jim Nielsen, consumer and corporate affairs minister, has offered a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons attacking Social Credit signs in Richmond, where he is seeking re-election.

Meanwhile, the services of The Shadow, a mythical radio character who knew all, would probably be of even more help than the citizen band radio vigilantes.

Shelford Deplores Campaign Bitterness

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A veteran Social Credit MLA who has talked about retiring from politics says political campaigns in B.C. are getting bitter with underlying tones of violence.

"This campaign is more bitter with workers tearing down signs and threats to campaign workers," Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford said Wednesday.

Shelford, who has been in the legislature since 1952, except for a three-year hiatus from 1972-75, said campaigns were more friendly back when he was first elected.

Shelford said he and his campaign workers in the Skeena riding, which he represented in the last house, have received threats of violence, but he doesn't blame anyone in particular.

Shelford said the days when former premier W. A. C. Bennett and former NDP leader Bob Strachan would tear into each other in the legislature and then retire upstairs to have a cup of tea together seem to be over.

"Society's going to suffer for it," he said. "We're going to lose both sides."

'Fighting' Bennett Rips into Hecklers

B.C. '79

DUNCAN (CP) — An agitated Premier Bill Bennett reacted to hecklers Wednesday by denouncing the former NDP government as a sloppy, spendthrift group which brought B.C. into disrepute.

Bennett, at the end of a day of active campaigning in areas held by the NDP in the last provincial election, told a generally supportive audience of about 700 that the previous government, in power from 1972 to 1975, had dragged down the province's economy at a time when the country was booming.

His fighting outburst came as a heckler asked why the Social Credit government had raised the retail sales tax to seven per cent from five per cent when it assumed office. Since then the tax on most items has been dropped to four per cent.

Bennett replied that taxes had to rise because the NDP had left behind a financial mess that had to be cleared up.

"The NDP was the freest-spending, sloppiest government this country has ever seen," Bennett said. "They spilt more than you or I will ever see."

Bennett said that although spending under the NDP government rose by 27 per cent a year, the rate of spending increase had been held to eight per cent — less than the inflation rate — since Social Credit took over.

"I'm glad you mentioned that, because I'll put that record up against any provincial government in this country, anytime, anywhere," the premier shouted.

"Don't talk to me about putting up taxes. If you don't believe me, put the NDP back in and you'll have taxes beyond belief."

Bennett said the NDP had engineered the biggest financial coverup in B.C.'s history when they left office.

Bennett also told another heckler he did not think that protection of the environment and industrial expansion are conflicting goals.

But if it came to a choice, "I'll stick up for the province and the environment every darn time."

He added later he does not think now that uranium mining would make any contribution to B.C. and noted that the last government to push ahead with uranium development was the NDP government of Saskatchewan.

In speeches in the last two days on Vancouver Island, Bennett has seemed at his best when replying to hecklers. His strong responses have received better cheers from supporters than his prepared speeches.

Bennett began the day Wednesday in Nanaimo, an NDP stronghold in recent elections, at a party luncheon attended by about 300 supporters and Tom Humble, who is running for the Socreds.

The premier labelled a small business group centred in Vancouver as an NDP front, saying the group is led by Len Friesen, a one-time NDP candidate.

Bennett said the group is trying to pretend it is an independent voice rising up to support the NDP.

Barrett Flays SC

COURTENAY (CP) — The Social Credit government is using pork-barrel tactics to get re-elected in the May 10 provincial general election, NDP leader Dave Barrett said Wednesday.

Barrett said he is fed up seeing Premier Bill Bennett on television every night pulling a cheque out of his pocket and handing it to some community or organization.

"Who told Bill Bennett he could use taxpayers money and float it around on the election campaign and make it appear that he had decided to do it all along?" he asked:

"More and more, people feel the government has been a little bit sleezy, a little bit too smart by half, a little too gimmicky and a little bit trying to buy back your vote with your own money. . . .

"It is an insult to the people of B.C. that we have such old-fashioned crass politics by a government that will do anything and say anything to get itself re-elected."

Barrett accused the Social Credit government of ignoring its advisors, saying that two major studies, one by the government and the other by the University of Victoria, recommended that the government try to smooth the ups and downs in the B.C. economy caused by fluctuations in export demand and private investments.

This could be done by scheduling public investment and decreasing taxes during economic downturns.

Instead, he said, the government increased taxes and user fees, withdrawing $462 million from the economy.

This included $200 million from increasing sales tax by 10 per cent, $23.5 million from raising income tax by 17 per cent and $10 million from a 50-per-cent increase in the cigarette-tobacco tax.

A 50-per-cent increase in medical premiums and up to 700 per cent increases in hospital rates cost $14 million, insurance rate increases of up to 300 per cent cost $175 million, doubling per cent bus fare increase, $20 million and doubling ferry rates, another $20 million.

He said economic statistics show the rate of growth dropped 20 per cent during the three years under the Social Credit compared with three years of the NDP.

Barrett said one of the first bills an NDP-dominated legislature would approve would stop foreign ownership of land in B.C.

He said an NDP government would work toward a pension plan which would include women working in the home, a promise made during the 1975 campaign.

He said hand-logging, which he described as one of the few heritage and cultural activities native to B.C., would be permitted under his administration — as it was under the previous NDP government.

Barrett said he would set up a legislative committee to recommend legislation ensuring automatic increases in the minimum wage.

Earlier in the day, Barrett met with federal NDP leader Ed Broadbent in Comox where both took a swing at the federal and provincial governments before a noontime audience of 600.

In an interview, the former premier said he is surprised Bennett has attacked the NDP for pursuing former premier W. A. C. Bennett's vision for the North.

Management Plan for Kluane Park

WHITEHORSE (CP) — Parks Canada has released a proposed management plan for Kluane national park, designed to increase access, emphasize wilderness and protect environmentally-sensitve areas.

The proposal outlines plans for a series of improvements, including new trails, campgrounds, roads and zoning within park boundaries. It estimates the improvements will take between 10 and 15 years and cost about $6 million.

Kluane is Canada's largest national park, taking up 8,500 square miles in the southwest corner of the Yukon.

Parks superintendent Jim Masyk said the improvements will enable more people to enter the park. They would be monitored and directed by roads and trails to areas where they could enjoy the benefits of the park without doing a lot of damage.

"We've come up with what we think will be the best plan for Kluane national park."

TWO GOOD DEALS YOU SHOULDN'T PASS UP.

If you're looking at small cars these days, and you haven't looked at the Mazda GLC hatchback or the GLC wagon, you may be passing up two very good deals.

Three good deals, actually–because now is the time that your Mazda dealer is ready and willing to talk price with you.

To start, the Mazda GLC comes with a new 1400 cc overhead cam piston engine that's very stingy on gas. Transport Canada's rating of the regular 2-door Mazda GLC is 6.9 L/100 km (66km/gal). Now that's using less expensive regular gas.

Also that's better gasoline mileage than any car built in North America.

To stop the GLC, you get power-assisted front disc brakes. And handling is a cinch because the GLC's turning circle is even smaller than the VW Rabbit's.

If you're looking for a versatile, smartly-styled wagon, GLC stands out in that field, too. The GLC wagon is a roomy sub-compact wagon that's only 9" longer than the Mazda GLC. Yet, it has 113% more cargo space than the GLC.

Both good-deal GLC's are equipped with a collection of standard features that many other small cars can't match. On the GLC Deluxe and the wagon, you get split rear seats. Tinted windows. Locking gas cover. Trip odometer. Fully reclining bucket seats. Rear window washer and wiper. Electric rear window defogger. And protective body side moulding. Repeat, these are standard. Not expensive options.

So if you like the sound of these two good deals, go see your Mazda dealer. He's got the third good deal to add on–a good deal of saving. Talk to him about it, now.

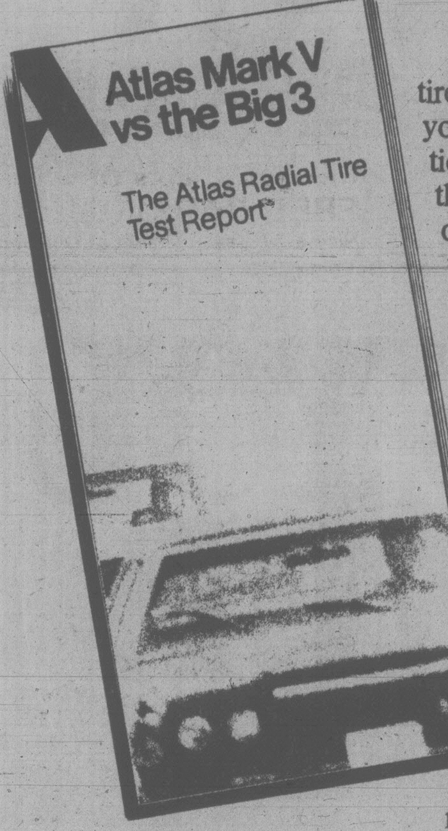
THE ATLAS CELEBRATION SALE!

APRIL 23 - JUNE 2

Why we're celebrating.



Atlas Mark V vs the Big 3

The Atlas Radial Tire Test Report*

If you have fixed ideas about tires, this 16 page booklet*, which is yours for the asking at any participating Esso Dealer, could change them. It contains a summary of the results of an extensive head to head competitive tire test called "Atlas vs The Big 3". And because in overall performance, the Atlas Mark V tested out to be number one, we decided to celebrate.

The Atlas Mark V steel belted radial was tested against the leading French, and the two leading North American premium quality steel belted radials.

The tests covered areas of performance most important to you - durability, traction, endurance, ride and handling characteristics.

And the Atlas Tire did very well indeed. In fact, the tests proved that in overall quality the Mark V tested out to be number one. The same rigid standards of quality and performance are built into every Atlas Tire we make - and that makes the Atlas Celebration Sale the place to buy your next set of tires. Atlas Tires, like all Atlas products, are guaranteed by Imperial Oil.

Pick up the booklet, it gives a summary of the test results, names the competition, and it's worth its weight in savings.

*The names of the competing tires in the advertisement, together with a summary of all the test results appear in the free 16 page booklet "Atlas vs The Big 3", available May 1st at participating Esso Dealers, or write "Atlas vs The Big 3", P.O. Box 2337, Oshawa, Ontario, L1H 7V6.

Relief in Sight for Weary Red River Flood-Battlers

Times News Services

Flood-stricken communities across Canada continued to battle high waters Wednesday, but relief was in sight in some areas.

Weary flood fighters in the Red River Valley heard encouraging words from Gov.-Gen. Edward Schreyer and heartening statistics from provincial officials.

The governor-general toured the hardest-hit areas of southern Manitoba by helicopter, stopping briefly in the town of Morris and in St. Jean-Baptiste.

The provincial water resources division said the crest of the Red River now is expected to reach St. Jean-Baptiste Friday, three days later than had been predicted, at 782.5 feet above sea level, down half a foot from the last estimate.

The crest is due to arrive Saturday in Morris, 65 kilometres south of Winnipeg, at 781.5 feet, a foot below the earlier prediction. It is expected Sunday in Ste Agathe at 773.5 feet, half a foot lower than had been anticipated.

Winnipeg, which was hit hard by the disastrous Manitoba flood of 1950 but now is protected by a floodway, is expected to get a flood crest next Wednesday. Meanwhile, the short-term weather forecast called for light showers or snowflurries, and cool temperatures.

The Red River crested Wednesday near Letellier, about 20 kilometres north of the international border. More than 13,000 residents have fled their homes.

Officials have not estimated the total cost of the flood, expected to be in the millions of dollars.

In Toronto, Ontario Premier William Davis announced the province would contribute up to $4 for every $1 raised by municipalities, corporations and others who set up funds in aid of the washed out northeastern areas of the province. The Field and Sturgeon Falls districts have been declared disaster areas.

On the East Coast, the Trans-Canada Highway remained closed east of Fredericton, but the level of the St. John River in the New Brunswick capital slipped lower.

Denis Prevost, a civil protection official in Quebec City, said Wednesday the "worst seems to be over" in the 17 flooded municipalities in Quebec's northeastern Gaspe region, where 320 residents were forced from their homes. He also said water levels are beginning to subside in towns along the Ottawa River in the Hull area, where 300 were evacuated.

The flood situation in the northeastern Alberta community of Fort McMurray remained stable Wednesday but Mayor Ted Mason warned that the anticipated breakup of the Clearwater River could bring disaster.

And in the Yukon, the Yukon River spilled over its banks early today, flooding downtown Dawson City.

Telephone service was disrupted temporarily as water was reported two metres deep in places.

Rome Terror Gang Bombs Party's HQ

ROME (AP) — Leftist terrorists set off bombs in the Rome headquarters of the Christian Democratic party in a pre-election raid today, then fled while trading shots with police, leaving at least one policeman dead and two others wounded critically, police said.

The Italian news agency ANSA quoted firemen as saying they found the bodies of three persons in the rubble, but there was no confirmation of this. Fire officials said the only casualties were policemen.

The gang, possibly numbering as many as 15 members, set off high-powered explosives, devastating one floor of the building and causing damage to other floors in the six-storey structure.

Scores of police cars and armored vehicles rushed to the scene near the Tiber River in downtown Rome and helicopters hovered overhead in an attempt to spot the fleeing gang.

Italian radio said firemen found the gang had painted the five-pointed Red Star symbol of the Red Brigades.

The attack came a month before Italians vote in a national election, and the radio said the terrorists scrawled on the walls: "Transform the electoral fraud into a class war."

Police said the terrorists struck about 9:30 a.m. One group armed with sub-machineguns entered the building and led out workers found inside, some of them in handcuffs.

Other gang members stood guard outside the building. The gang then set off the bombs inside the building. Witnesses said the terrorists occupied the party headquarters for about 15 minutes.

On the way out of the building, officers said, the attackers were confronted by a squad car with three policemen and opened fire on them with sub-machine guns.

Police said the attackers then made their getaway.

N-Leaks Puzzle Experts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Engineers and chemists are baffled by a corrosion problem causing pipes to crack and leak small amounts of radioactive water in at least 15 nuclear power plants in the United States, federal regulators say.

Staff members of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) told commission members Wednesday the problem has caused extensive pipe damage in steam generators of five nuclear plants and minor to moderate damage to pipes at 10 other plants.

Darrell Eisenhut, deputy director of the NRC's division of operating reactors, said a chemical reaction involving acids, chlorine and salt causes a corrosive buildup between the pipes and their metal fittings, creating pressure.

He said the only solution now appears to be replacing the pipes. Scientists have been unable to develop a chemical to dissolve the corrosion buildup, he said.

NRC technicians said in interviews almost all the radioactive water from the pipes remains inside the steam generators. It is closely monitored and eventually will be decontaminated. However, small amounts turn into steam, and are emitted into the atmosphere in amounts below government hazard standards, they said.

New Deal By BCFP

MACKENZIE (CP) — British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. announced today that it has reached an agreement in principle to acquire a large minority interest in Finlay Forest Industries Ltd.

Company spokesman Doug Evans said final negotiations were underway and he was not prepared to disclose details of the transaction.

Evans also announced a $32 million expansion to the Finlay pulp and sawmill operation, including new wood product manufacturing facilities and expansion to the refiner groundwood pulp mill.

He said construction is scheduled to begin in the fall. The expansion is expected to create 385 new jobs.

Oklahoma Twister Lifts School Roof

LAHOMA, Okla (AP) — At least two persons died when tornadoes ripped through northwestern Oklahoma, causing an estimated $4.5 million in damage to one small community.

Hardest hit Wednesday was Lahoma, where a school building, city hall, 43 homes, nine mobile homes and the grain elevator were heavily damaged in the community of 299 people. Officials estimated the damage at $4.5 million.

The twister lifted the roof off the Lahoma school building and left 15 centimetres of water in its place. Superintendent W. G. Harrington said no classes were scheduled today as officials attempted to determine where to hold the final 1½ weeks of school.

Connie Jo Kerfoot, 14, was killed when a twister hit her grandparents' home eight kilometres west of Meno. Police said the girl was visiting her grandparents when the tornado hit. Her grandparents, Walter and Luella Peterson, were critically injured, said the Highway Patrol.

Stiff Test for Long Curtis Win Streak

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

If anyone could write an explicit how-to-do-it manual entitled Everything You Ever Wanted to Know About Political Survival or The Joy of Winning Elections, it would be Hugh Curtis.

For sheer durability he must rank as a local phenomenon, with an uninterrupted tenure of more than 17 years in public life. His record of victories includes 10 in municipal and provincial elections and numerous others for such positions as chairman of the Capital Region Board and president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

But many people who have watched this smooth ascent to the political peaks over a period of nearly two decades are wondering whether they will see the climber take his first pratfall in the May 10 provincial election.

Curtis won the Saanich-The Islands seat as a Progressive Conservative in 1972 and again in 1975 after espousing politics of a different (Social Credit) Hugh. Both feats were accomplished in his usual style — with relative ease.

This time, however, he faces in the New Democratic Party's John Mika a candidate generally acknowledged as the strongest, most aggressive challenger Curtis has ever encountered in his political career.

'Very Good Chance' - Mika

Will he emerge triumphant yet again? Even the most diehard Socred supporter tends to waffle and hedge at the question, while Curtis himself replies cautiously: "I think it will be a tough battle in Saanich-The Islands between the Social Credit and NDP candidates."

By contrast Mika appears quietly confident.

"I think Curtis, because of the feeling of remoteness he has created in the past three years and his party's policies, is vulnerable," he says. "I think I have a very good chance."

But the only prediction a reporter hears as he criss-crosses the 198-square-mile riding is that the result will be close, probably the narrowest margin ever in a constituency that has traditionally snuggled in the pocket of the free enterprise crowd.

The third man in the three-candidate race is Conservative John Green, who was until April 10 executive assistant to Tory leader Vic Stephens but is perhaps better known as the author of four books on the Sasquatch.

Cynics claim Green's dogged search for Tory supporters across the suburban neighborhoods, farms and small communities of the riding will produce as few results as the hunt for the incredible hulk itself.

In 1972 Curtis captured the seat for the Tories with nearly 36 per cent of the popular vote, against a fairly strong showing by the Socred candidate Foster Isherwood (25 per cent). But it was clearly a case of the electorate supporting the man rather than the party.

Three years later the Tories' fortunes slumped dismally when their candidate Irene Block with a vote share of just over 10 per cent trailed a distant third behind Socred convert Curtis (50.3 per cent) and the NDP's Carol Pickup (35.6).

That performance by Pickup was considered surprisingly good for a candidate almost unknown prior to the election. And Mika — who has been prominently in the public eye as a Saanich alderman — is expected to improve significantly on the vote base she established.

But it would be foolish to underestimate Curtis's popularity, the strength of Socred support in the riding and the huge task Mika faces in trying to wipe out the 4,000-vote gap that separated the Socred and NDP candidates three and a half years ago.

University of Victoria political scientist Mark Sproule-Jones says Saanich-The Islands voters generally vote the way the province as a whole votes, and he believes an individual candidate is worth 2,000 or perhaps 3,000 votes at most.

On the other hand, there are several new factors in the 1979 election that cloud the picture and thoroughly confuse those who try to interpret signs and portents.

The riding has shrunk and its southerly border has shifted slightly northward under boundary redistribution, with part going to Victoria and part on the eastern flank to Oak Bay-Gordon Head. But it has absorbed a new chunk of suburban territory to the west including the Gorge, Marigold and Strawberry Vale areas.

The total number of eligible voters has increased by 6,500 over 1975, and a number of these are probably blue-collar workers who have moved into the new subdivisions in Saanich and the peninsula communities — fertile ground for the NDP.

But just how much the bigger voting population and altered demographic makeup have changed voting patterns is anyone's guess. The parties themselves incline to the theory that any gains and losses are balanced out.

Then again there is no Liberal candidate in this race. Even allowing for the pathetic performance of the Liberal candidate in 1975 — Edgar Rhomberg's 3.8 per cent share — that's 1,000-odd possibly crucial votes floating on the political breezes to settle who knows where on May 10.

While in their personalities they are as diverse as any three candidates could be, Curtis, Mika and Green do have some things in common.

All three have a background in the communications media. In his younger days the 46-year-old Curtis worked for CJVI and then CFAX radio stations, handling every job from sales to reading news and commercials. Mika, 48, was a reporter for 19 years, 15 of them with the Victoria Times. Green, 52, whose 30 years in the newspaper business included a stint with the Colonist, was for several years the owner-publisher of a weekly newspaper in the Fraser Valley.

They also have or had an active involvement in matters municipal: Curtis 12 years on Saanich council, nine of them as mayor, followed by cabinet responsibility for municipal affairs before he was switched to the provincial secretary's job; Mika now in his second term as a member of that same council; and Green as a former mayor of Harrison Hot Springs.

Kept His Promises - Curtis

Curtis said he plans to remind the electorate of a number of promises which have been kept or are on the way to fulfilment, including the extension of piped water from the Greater Victoria water system to the Saanich Peninsula and the reopening of a magistrates' court in Sidney after a gap of five years.

Among other campaign issues he will stress that negotiations to acquire all or part of Sidney Island are "by no means dead, shelved or postponed," and pledge continued Socred support for the long-discussed proposal to build a breakwater and berthing facilities at the foot of Sidney's Beacon Avenue.

Curtis rejected Mika's allegation that he has been a remote figure, neglecting his constituents, since his elevation to cabinet rank.

"It may be surprising to the NDP to know the kind of one-to-one contact I have in this constituency," he said.

Expressing a dislike of campaigns that descend to personal attacks, Curtis predicted the fight in Saanich-The Islands riding would be fought along partisan lines — "the philosophy of Social Credit versus the philosophy of the NDP; who is more important, the individual or the state?

"I think it's fair to say that the NDP candidate in this riding is far to the left of the bulk of his party in philosophy. He could not be classed as a moderate and that concerns me greatly as a British Columbian, not just as an opponent."

But Curtis was apparently reluctant in his interview with the Times to show his hand on specific issues or promises, indicating he preferred to save some ammunition for the later stages of the campaign.

Mika, who recently resigned as researcher to the NDP caucus to run in the campaign, claims he is getting some support from non-NDP voters who like his performance on Saanich council.

'He Undermined Safeguard'

He believes a new slant to this provincial election is the spillover of issues and concerns from the municipal field.

As an example he cites the anxiety of many citizens who find their neighborhoods confronted with sudden, traumatic change through development. He claims this stems directly from the Socred decision to eliminate the former two-thirds majority vote required for councils to approve rezoning applications, and to do away with land-use contracts.

"That (the replacement of the two-thirds requirement by a simple majority) was done by Curtis two years ago," Mika said. "He undermined the traditional safeguard that existed for people who invested their life savings in a home."

On Saanich council Mika has been a vehement opponent of the controversial proposal for an industrial park in the Royal Oak area. He's carrying this fight into the provincial arena by calling for vigorous promotion of the industrial reserves already established in Central Saanich and Sidney.

Mika is also pushing a number of other local issues ranging from preferential ferry rates for Island-produced agricultural or industrial products to better public transportation for Saanich Peninsula communities.

The Conservatives' Green, however, seems less interested in discussing local concerns than in getting across the message that there is a third choice in this election.

Since his nomination six months ago Green has done a fair amount of door-to-door canvassing and the impression he gets is that there are many voters disenchanted with the Socred government but who don't particularly want to see the NDP back in power.

"But they still seem to be of the state of mind where they feel they have to pick one or the other," Green said. "If they could only realize how many other people are thinking the same way the whole picture could be vastly different."

Green, who ran unsuccessfully in the Yale riding in 1963 and in Dewdney in 1975, argues that polarization works just as effectively for the NDP as it does for the Socreds. And he claims if it were anyone else but the "unpopular" Socreds in a two-way race with the NDP the result would be a free enterprise sweep.

"The voters are guaranteeing that socialism will take over B.C. if they restrict themselves to only one other option," he says. "The key element in this election is whether people can see in time that they cannot beat the NDP by voting Social Credit, but that they could by voting for the Conservatives."

Meanwhile, if visual evidence and chats in the street are anything to go by, there is not the slightest sign that the candidates' philosophies, prophecies and promises to date have whipped up any smoldering passion.

As Bryan Critchison, manager of the News and Smokes store in Sidney observed: "The subject just never comes up (in conversation with customers). It seems to me people are turned off politics altogether and figure one party or politician is as bad as another."

As this largely rural riding basks in the spring sunshine there are definite signs of rampant fever. But the root cause is gardening, not politics.

Dowell Pulls 'Oil Spill' On Glazier's Big Secret

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Capital Regional District board chairman Murray Glazier wanted to keep everything mum Wednesday after a 90-minute secret meeting on Victoria's controversial oil tank farms.

But all of Glazier's efforts went for naught when Ald. Shirley Dowell of Oak Bay spilled the beans.

The meeting was between representatives of the oil companies who have been given deadlines to move oil tanks from the Inner Harbor and the regional district's public works committee.

After the meeting, Glazier refused to say whether any site was favored, stating that "several locations" had been mentioned.

But Dowell, chairman of the regional district's tank farm relocation committee, revealed the Shell, Gulf and Chevron representatives told the committee they favor the Esquimalt Harbor area on Admirals Road in View Royal as the site for a consolidated oil tank farm.

The company officials, Dowell said, promised they would produce a site plan in four to six weeks and submit an application for rezoning of the 32-acre site. The oil companies would then sponsor a public information meeting, prior to any public hearing called by the regional district.

She said the oil companies are considering placing a consolidated tank farm on 16 or 17 acres in the southerly part of the site that is already zoned for industry. If this is done, no rezoning would be necessary.

The company representatives told the committee if this approach is taken, the remainder of the site would be made into a buffer zone. Dowell estimated it could be two years before the relocation of the tanks is completed.

The companies have deadlines of 1981 and 1987 to move out of the Inner Harbor.

Dowell said she saw no reason why the meeting with the oil companies had to be secret.

But Glazier, who made the motion to have the meeting held behind closed doors, said the oil companies had requested an in-camera meeting and it involved land acquisition.

Glazier said the board would not be endorsing any particular site.

He said the board has to be concerned from a regional point of view and must consider the loss of jobs in the area and the higher prices residents would have to pay for fuel if the oil tank farms are moved out of the regional district to some other location such as Duke Point in Nanaimo.

At the open session that followed the secret session the committee also received correspondence opposing the relocation of the oil tanks to Admirals Road.

A brief from the View Royal Ratepayers' Association said it would spoil the natural harbor and a residential area, increase fire protection costs and threaten a recreation boating area.

Class Action Suit Threatened

A spokesman for the Royal Oak Community Association warned Saanich council Wednesday night that neighborhood residents may launch a class action suit against the municipality if the proposed Royal Oak industrial park lowers the market values of their homes.

Association president Ben Pires said at a public meeting the group intends to ask residents to have their properties appraised now so that comparisons can be made if the industrial development occurs.

He repeated the association's opposition to the industrial park proposal, and castigated Mayor Mel Couvelier for reversing his earlier stand against the issue.

Pires accused the mayor of discarding election campaign promises, betraying residents' trust and abandoning strongly-held views "in the face of pressure."

The meeting was called to consider a compromise proposal from Royal Oak property owner Art Kool, which would see about one-third of the 90-acre industrial park area developed residentially.

Kool's plan, which he says is designed to resolve the basic conflict between landowners in the industrial park area and residents, would see a mixture of single-family homes, townhouses and area, west of Glanford.

It would be bounded by Mann Avenue to the north and Rithet Creek to the south, with a wooded buffer strip separating the residential and industrial development.

Pires told the four council members present that the association's executive has already held meetings with Kool and would meet again for further discussions.

But when Ald. Geoff Vantreight urged him to reach swift agreement with the developer, because the two sides are already close on the compromise proposal, Pires replied: "We're getting closer but I don't see the rush."

The mayor said at the start of the meeting that council Monday would forward "some proposal" to a May 23 public hearing.

But Pires stressed that whatever measure of agreement the association's executive thrashes out with Kool will have to be ratified by the membership.

Ald. Howard Sturrock, recalling the heated controversy the issue had generated over the past 10 years, agreed that there is no element of urgency.

Supervisors Joyriding?

Complaints about illegal use of Saanich municipal vehicles probably involve supervisory personnel rather than union members, a spokesman for Local 374 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees said today.

President Maureen Nuttall said it is primarily superintendents and other non-union employees in the ranks of lower and middle management who have access to official vehicles outside regular working hours.

She was commenting on charges by Ald. Geoff Vantreight that there is widespread misuse of Saanich vehicles.

Nuttall said she finds it hard to believe that gravel trucks are being driven around at night, as the alderman claimed, when they should be locked up in the municipal yard.

Drug Conspiracy Trial Jury Out

A 12-man county court jury started at 4 p.m. Wednesday to consider its verdict in the trial of five men charged with conspiracy to import more than 13 tons of marijuana near Tofino last July.

The accused each were charged with conspiracy to import a narcotic; with importing marijuana, and with possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking between April 1 and July 15, 1978.

Jurors have access to more than 100 exhibits entered in the Crown's case, including bales of raw marijuana, a bundle of banknotes totalling $4,000, a rifle, clothing, tents and camping equipment, taped telephone conversations, hotel records and a yellow piece of paper covered with handwritten names and figures alleged to have been prepared by an accused.

Much of the equipment was seized with the cached tons of marijuana in a joint police-armed forces raid on Obstruction Island. The operation concluded the electronic tracking of a Mexican vessel from Colombia up the Pacific Coast and into Canadian territorial waters off Sydney Inlet.

Judge Peter Millward told jurors in a charge lasting nearly two hours that much of the evidence they heard was circumstantial, that there was a large volume of it, with complicated issues and legal intricacies. They must be sure beyond reasonable doubt in order to convict on any one of the elements charged.

The jury would have to satisfy itself the actions of the accused were consistent with guilt as well as being inconsistent with any other explanation in order to convict, Millward said.

He also cautioned that an individual's knowledge of a conspiracy is not proof that he is a party to it.

Earlier, the charges of importing and possession for the purpose of trafficking against Frank Piersanti (who said his real name was Steven Cavanaugh Manning, 34, of Chicago) were removed and Millward explained why to the jury. The charge of conspiracy to import remained against him.

Piersanti was arrested with 10 others aboard a vessel alleged to have offloaded the marijuana from the Mexican ship.

The judge said where an accused is not a Canadian, leave of the attorney-general for Canada must be obtained to prosecute an offence committed in territorial waters, and this was not done. It would be up to the jury to decide whether the conspiracy occurred outside territorial waters, he said.

The other accused are Garth Clarence Vincent Joseph Sexton, 28, of Vancouver; William Harvey Shears, 31, also known as Ronald Cecil Spurrell, of Surrey; Frederick Charles Scott, 28, of Vancouver, and Richard John Andrews, 25, also known as John Mobley Doss, formerly of St. John's, of Dillon, Colo.

Fourteen others not indicted are named as co-conspirators.

7.25% Wage Hike Okayed By Public Library Workers

Greater Victoria Public Library employees have voted to accept a two-year contract which provides a 7.25-per-cent wage increase in each year.

Members of the 80-member local of the Canadian Union of Public Employees voted 75 per cent in favor of the agreement at a meeting Tuesday night.

The two-year contract is virtually the same as one rejected the night before by city hall inside workers by an 89 per cent margin.

Sooke school board employees, members of CUPE Local 459, have also settled on a two-year contract.

However, the 168 members of that local get a slightly higher wage increase, nine per cent in the first year and six per cent in the second.

Other CUPE members still without contracts are the regional district employees and about 1,800 members of five locals bargaining jointly.

Talks between the Joint Negotiating Committee and the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association reached an impasse when the employers' group rejected a union request for a conciliation board to be set up.

The JNC represents Greater Victoria school board, Esquimalt, Saanich, Oak Bay and outside Victoria workers.

Mulligan said Mitchell was convicted of robbery on pril 9, 1974, in Hope and sentenced to six months in il and given two years' probation, convicted of theft, orgery and false pretences on Oct. 11, 1977, at Sault Ste. arie and given consecutive sentences of three months, two onths and seven days, convicted of two counts of uttering nd given concurrent, 21-day jail terms and two years' robation, and convicted of uttering on April 4, 1979 in Port lberni and handed a six-month sentence.

Good Taste, Bad Morals

A Canadian-born Japanese who probably succumbed to a yearning for good old home cooking was described by Judge William Ostler in provincial court Wednesday as a person with "good taste and impeccable manners but horrible morals."

Harry Sonoda, 30, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty to obtaining food by fraud by skipping out on a $12.10 bill Monday night at the Yokohama Japanese Restaurant, 980 Blanshard.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan said Sonoda, who was born in Lethbridge, walked into the restaurant about 9:30 p.m., ordered and ate a meal and told the owner of the restaurant he forgot his money.

When asked for his name, Mulligan continued, Sonoda refused to supply the information and city police were called. Sonoda gave the information to police and also told officers he was destitute.

Duty legal aid lawyer Vincent Giles said Sonoda was looking for farm laboring work and had been cut off welfare after getting a $100 cheque March 28.

Ostler imposed a $35 fine, placed Sonoda on four months' probation and ordered him to make restitution to the restaurant within three months.

However, as Sonoda was leaving the courtroom, Ostler suggested the restaurant owner not hold his breath waiting for the money.

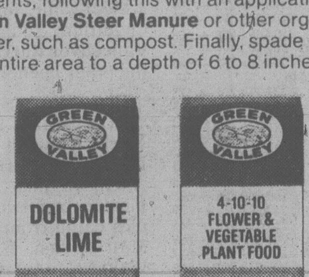
How Your Garden Grows

Delectable vegetables

Anyone with a small patch of ground in a sunny location can enjoy an abundant crop of succulent, fresh vegetables. It's a matter of simple preparation, beginning in early spring.

In March or April, apply Green Valley Dolomite Lime to your garden area. This will overcome the acid soil conditions which prevail in our region. Then add Green Valley Flower & Vegetable Plant Food to provide essential nutrients, following this with an application of Green Valley Steer Manure or other organic matter, such as compost. Finally, spade or rototill the entire area to a depth of 6 to 8 inches.



In May, plant vegetable seeds in rows. Two weeks after germination, thin rows to recommended spacing. Two or three times during the growing season, apply supplementary nitrogen in the form of urea dissolved in water to the rows of leafy vegetables, such as lettuce and cabbage. For tomato plants use the specially prepared Green Valley Tomato Food.

GREEN VALLEY
COMPOSTED STEER MANURE

Plants should be checked frequently for insects, and an appropriate insecticide used where needed. Once a week, water thoroughly, ideally with a soaker type hose. Finally, be sure to cultivate between rows regularly to eliminate weeds which compete with your vegetables for plant food and water.

'Disappointment' Costs Creighton

ATLANTA (AP) — For Atlanta coach Fred Creighton, more was lost than a shot at the Stanley Cup when Toronto Maple Leafs eliminated the Flames in the first round of the National Hockey League playoffs this year.

Creighton lost his job.

General manager Cliff Fletcher said Wednesday that Creighton's contract would not be renewed for the 1979-80 season.

"It was strictly a case of disappointment in not being able to advance in the playoffs," Fletcher said. "We want to win more hockey games. We've been in four playoffs now and have won only one game."

The Flames' playoff record under Creighton was 1-8. Overall, their playoff record is 1-12.

Creighton could not be reached for comment.

The dismissal of Creighton, who has never had a losing season while coaching professional hockey, was no surprise to the players, said captain Jean Pronovost.

"The handwriting was on the wall," he said. "You could see it coming when we didn't get by the first round of the playoffs.

"It's too bad it had to be Fred because we were all to blame. We didn't play up to our capabilities. And if we had made it through the first round, none of this would have happened."

Fletcher said the decision not to rehire Creighton was made during a meeting Tuesday with club president Bob Kent and principal owner Tom Cousins.

Fletcher said the Flames management now has no one in mind to replace Creighton.

However, Fletcher said, "The new coach will definitely, I repeat, definitely, not come from within the Atlanta Flames organization."

Tim Ecclestone, Creighton's assistant who has one year remaining on his contract, said he feels the 45-year-old head coach was a victim of circumstance.

"From the management standpoint, they have just made a major deal (the eight-player trade involving Tom Lysiak late in the season) and still didn't get by the first round of the playoffs. So they can't go back to the public with the same product. Fred is the victim of circumstances."

Creighton took over as coach of the Flames Feb. 3, 1975, following the resignation of Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion. In 4½ seasons, he compiled a record of 156 wins, 136 losses and 56 ties.

Nanaimo Timbermen may be crying for bodies, but, for openers, they did rather well with what they had.

They did not have Kevin Alexander, Bob Cool, Mike Walsh or Gord Racette.

The T-Men did have Mac Maude and 15 other willing workers. Just enough, for one night at least, to manage a split of the points in Wednesday's Western Lacrosse Association opener at Memorial Arena.

Sparked by Maude's fine goaltending, the gutsy Timbermen recovered from an early 4-0 deficit to tie Victoria Shamrocks 6-6, a result that could be construed as an upset.

After all, the Shamrocks, defending league champions, had outgunned Nanaimo 23-8 in an exhibition at Duncan last Saturday, were enjoying the luxury of 20 bodies and furthermore had home-floor advantage for the season's opener.

For a while, it appeared as if all the Victoria advantages were going to produce a ho-hum evening. By the 13:29 mark of the first period, the Rocks were ahead 4-0.

With five minutes to play, Nanaimo held the advantage, 6-5, and the Shamrocks needed Rick Baker's second goal of the game to avoid greater embarassment.

It was Mrs. Maude's boy Mac who did most to frustrate the Rocks but Nanaimo coach Larry McNabb was quick to lay on a big assist to the Timbermen's good checking.

"At the moment, we haven't got the personnel to play offensive lacrosse," said McNabb. "After that game in Duncan, we worked on checking. We wound up outshooting Victoria (48-43) tonight and that's how we may have to play it unless we get a few more players."

Timbermen did out-shoot the Rocks but Victoria appeared to have an edge in the better chances. Among the 37 stops Maude made were six exceptional ones to deprive Ivan Thompson (twice), Dave Thomson, Joe McCrea, newcomer Craig Robinson and Norm Baker of goals. Five of the six came in the final period when Victoria out-shot Nanaimo 18-12.

Nanaimo's already-thin lineup was unexpectedly depleted when defenceman Racette was unable to make the trip to Victoria because of business in Port Alberni. Walsh, attending UBC, won't be available until the university term ends later this month.

Alexander and Cool, the high-scoring rookie combination for Nanaimo last year, want to play for the Shamrocks. Their situation remains unsettled.

McCrae joined Rick Baker as a two-goal gunner for the Rocks while Charn Dhillon and Dave Thomson scored the others. Doug Angrove, the Victoria junior grad signed by Nanaimo as the first draft choice, Terry Bayes, Jim Guerin, Ken King, Randy Noble and Brian Evans scored for the T-Men.

Nanaimo scored three goals with the odd man advantage as the Shamrocks took 11 minors to the Timbermen's five. Victoria scored one power-play goal and also connected once while playing shorthanded.

Meanwhile, in Vancouver, Coquitlam Adanacs stopped Vancouver Burrards 20-12 in the other opener.

Rhys Parsons led the attack with five goals, while Mark Valastin and Dave Durante had three each. Jim Aitchison and Randy Delmonico had two each. Singles came from Art Talson, Matt Aitken, Fred Klomp, Wayne McAuley and John Caviglia.

Dave Litzenberger was top gun for the Burrards, with three goals. Dan Perreault, Keith Baker and Doug Hayes each had doubles. Bill Foote, Andy Kirk and Terry Bingley scored singles.

Boisterous Fans A Boston Weapon

Times News Services

When the National Hockey League playoff semi-final between Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins moved to Boston for the third game Tuesday night, the Bruins switched roles.

On the road, they are formidable, but at home in the Garden they are fearsome.

The Canadiens, of course, have their own fortress in the Forum, but it is a hallowed hockey institution and has acquired a dignity from that distinction.

The Garden is a raucous force intruding on a hockey game.

Its fans — or, rather those among the official capacity of 14,654 who are close enough to do so — pound their fists on the glass surrounding the compact ice surface, threatening officials who have missed calls obvious to the Bruins' supporters on opposing players who have incurred their wrath.

Boston fans generally are knowledgeable, but to a man, woman and child, they are blindly partisan.

"I came in after the first period and said to somebody, Gee, those fans are really buzzing out there tonight,' " said defenceman Brad Park after his third-period goal gave the Bruins a 2-1 victory in the third game of the best-of-seven series, which Montreal leads 2-1 going into tonight's fourth game.

Boston fans buzz at the quietest of times, but they fairly roared, shaking the ancient building, when Park's goal sailed past Montreal goaltender Ken Dryden's stick side at 16:48 of the third period.

It is the environment in which Montreal defenceman Brian Engblom found himself after suffering a concussion in the third game and losing track of the night's events.

"All I can remember," said Engblom after Montreal's practice Wednesday, "is it was in the second period and I lost my stick in the corner."

"The puck came to me, and I froze it against the boards and I think it was (Terry) O'Reilly hit me from the side. The side of my head went up against the glass. I remember thw whistle went, and that's all I can remember.

"I skated over to the bench and sat down and turned to Serge (Savard) and he asked me 'Who hit you?' I said 'Hutchison.' That's when he started to laugh."

Dave Hutchison, like the rest of Toronto Maple Leafs eliminated by the Canadiens in a quarter-final series sweep, is off until next fall.

"I turned to Rod (Langway)," Engblom related from what his team-mates had told him, "and I said 'Oh no, I'm really screwed up.' I said 'Is it league or is it playoffs?' I had no idea.

Engblom was expected back tonight, as was defenceman Guy Lapointe, who missed the third game with a hand hurt in practice Monday. Forwards Steve Shutt, Mark Napier and Rejean Houle were doubtful.

The game will be seen on the full CBC television network starting at 4:30 p.m. PDT.

Meanwhile, with a clutch of youngsters, a few old pros and a couple of well-travelled journeymen playing their hearts out, New York Rangers have become the Cinderella team of the playoffs.

Going into game four of their best-of-seven semi-final series tonight, they lead New York Islanders 2-1 and are raising their fans to a fever pitch.

Gillen Hero In Overtime

PORTLAND (CP) — Don Gillen scored at 4:28 in sudden-death overtime to give Brandon Wheat Kings a 4-3 win over Portland Winter Hawks in Western Hockey League championship playoff action before 6,677 fans here Wednesday night.

The East Division champion Wheat Kings now lead the best-of-seven series 3-2. Sixth game will be played here tonight. If a seventh game is needed it will be played Saturday in Brandon.

Much of the overtime action was in the Brandon zone and Wheat King goaltender Rick Knickle stopped five Portland shots.

In a scramble along the boards, Portland defenceman Keith Brown got caught and Gillen pickup up a loose puck at centre ice for a break-away run that ended the game.

Brandon picked up four of the seven minor penalties.

California's Angels Are the Real Thing

By The Canadian Press

It's time to believe the 1979 California Angels are for real, says fireballer Nolan Ryan.

"We played the powers of the East and proved we could play with them," the Angels' righthander said Wednesday after beating World Series-champion New York Yankees and pitching ace Ron Guidry 1-0.

"It was a classic pitching match-up, and the fans got their money's worth," said Guidry.

An Anaheim Stadium sellout crowd of 40,648 viewed the duel between two of baseball's best pitchers, with police saying an estimated 10,000 more fans were turned away. Scalpers are reported to have been asking $50 a ticket.

Ryan, 4-1, allowed six hits, struck out seven and walked two, while Guidry, 2-2, allowed five hits, struck out nine and walked three.

Jim Anderson, a replacement for ailing Angels second baseman Bobby Grich, drove in Terry Humphrey with the game's lone run on a double in the third inning. Humphrey himself was inserted into the lineup when regular catcher Brian Downing was limited to a designated-hitter role because he'd had a shot in his right shoulder.

A recurring groin muscle pull had cut short Ryan's last two starts before Wednesday, but he said it didn't bother him this time.

"I wore a sleeve on my right leg and it kept the moisture and heat in," Ryan explained. "I didn't feel too good at the start, but as the game went on, I got more confident."

Elsewhere in the American League, Milwaukee Brewers whipped Cleveland Indians 6-1, Minnesota Twins downed Toronto Blue Jays 7-5, Texas Rangers edged Kansas City Royals 3-2, Baltimore Orioles routed Seattle Mariners 9-3 and Boston Red Sox shaded Oakland A's 2-1. Detroit Tigers and the White Sox were rained out in Chicago.

Meanwhile in the National League, Pittsburgh's Bill Robinson went into the game determined to have a good time, which, lately, has been a rarity for him. But this time, he had a ball.

Robinson hit a pair of two-run homers and went 3-for-5, leading the Pirates to a 10-2 win over Atlanta Braves. With two swings of the bat, Robinson doubled his home-run production for the season.

Robinson's night for fun came on a relatively quiet National League program. In the only other games scheduled, Cincinnati Reds beat Chicago Cubs 4-1, with Mike LaCoss pitching perfect ball for the first five innings, and St. Louis Cardinals downed Houston 5-2, scoring two runs after a fifth-inning error by shortstop Craig Reynolds of the Astros.

A United Way to Go For Harness Opening

Sandown Raceway will donate all opening-day gate receipts to the United Way campaign.

Betty Newton, public relations officer for United Way, and general-manager Jim Keeling of Sandown Raceway, announced Wednesday that United Way Day will start the 65-day harness-racing season at the Sidney facility on May 19.

Admission to the track will be $1.

Ohio State Grad Top Draft Choice

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Cousineau, an all-America linebacker from Ohio State, was selected by Buffalo Bills as the No.1 choice in the 1979 National Football League college draft today.

It took less than a minute for the Bills to make the selection, using a pick they received from San Francisco in the trade last year that sent running back O. J. Simpson to the '49ers.

The 6-foot-2½, 230-pound Cousineau has been compared to another Ohio State product, Denver all-pro linebacker Randy Gradishar.

The Bills also had the No. 5 pick in the opening round and claimed Jerry Butler, an all-America wide receiver from Clemson.

Kansas City Chiefs, as expected, then went for defensive line help, taking Colorado State tackle Mike Bell.

Cincinnati Bengals took Washington State quarterback Jack Thompson as the third pick. Thompson, nicknamed the Throwin' Samoan because his family moved from American Samoa to the United States when he was four, passed for an NCAA record 7,818 yards in four seasons and ranks among the all-time career leaders in total offence, completions and touchdown passes.

The Bengals had been expected to go for offensive line help, so the selection of Thompson was a surpriise.

Chicago Bears, also with two choices in the first round, selected Dan Hampton, a 6-5, 250-pound defensive tackle from Arkansas, and Al Harris, an all-America defensive end from Arizona State.

The Baltimore Colts, desperately in need of defensive help, chose Barry Krauss, a 238-pound linebacker from national champion Alabama; New York Giants selected Phil Simms, a 6-2 quarterback from Morehead State in Kentucky; St. Louis Cardinals picked running back Ottis (O. J.) Anderson from Miami in Florida, and Detroit Lions took Keith Dorney, an all-America tackle from Penn State.

Soviets List Ticket Prices For Olympics

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Tickets for the opening and closing ceremonies at the 1980 Moscow Summer Olympic Games will cost from $15 to $37.50, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia has announced.

For the actual competition, tickets for morning events and preliminary heats will cost between $3 and $9, and for evening events, quarter-finals and semi-finals, from $4.50 to $22.50.

Tickets for finals will be priced between $7.50 and $27.

Pelicans Trip Island Squad

Pelicans, a make-up side from the San Francisco Bay area, tripped the Vancouver Island Rugby Union President's XV 6-3 in an exhibition match Wednesday at UVic.

The two teams were tied 3-3 at the half in a hard-fought, physical encounter.

Converted Kick Scoring Hit

By The Canadian Press

For a recently-converted midfielder who wants to go back to being a defender, Alan Merrick is beginning to act like a striker.

"Actually I still prefer playing back and being a sweeper," said Merrick, whose two goals rallied Minnesota Kicks to a 2-1 North American Soccer League triumph Wednesday over Seattle Sounders.

As a defender with the Kicks, Merrick had scored only one goal in his first three years in the NASL. That came on June 26, 1976.

But coach Roy McCrohan moved Merrick to midfield this year, and the 28-year-old native of Birmingham, England, has also responded with a pair of assists, giving him a career-high seven points after only five games.

In the only other game, Vancouver Whitecaps defeated San Diego Sockers 3-1.

Derek Smethurst opened scoring to give Seattle a 1-0 lead before 14,787 chilled fans in Bloomington, Minn. Then Merrick took over, scoring in the 29th and 78 minutes.

The victory was the fourth straight for Minnesota, 4-1, while Seattle is 1-4.

At Vancouver, striker Kevin Hector played the opportunists' role twice as the Whitecaps downed the Sockers to avenge a 1-0 loss in San Diego last Saturday.

Hector scored once in each half before 16,985 fans as he took advantage of two defensive miscues by the San Diego club. Trevor Whymark opened the scoring for the Whitecaps and Peter Nover counted for San Diego.

The victory moved Vancouver 13 points ahead of second-place Los Angeles Aztecs in the Western Division of the National Conference.

'76ers Eliminated

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — San Antonio Spurs have earned a playoff rematch with Washington Bullets. And veteran Louie Dampier says the Spurs will show up this year without the playoff monkey that's been on their backs for a decade.

With emergency starter Mike Green scoring 11 nine crucial fourth-quarter points and guided by the seldom-used Dampier, the Spurs shaded Philadelphia '76ers 111-108 Wednesday in the decisive seventh game of the National Basketball Association's quarter-final series.

The Central Division champion Spurs have qualified for either the American Basketball Association or NBA playoffs in 11 of the franchise's 12 years, but hadn't won a series since 1968 — when they were the ABA's Dallas Chaparrals.

They also won the Central Division last year and got a bye into the second round, only to be eliminated by Washington in six games. There was grumbling about a playoff jinx.

"It's just a nice thing to finally get the monkey off our back," said the 34-year-old Dampier, who was successful on two fourth-quarter jumpers and quarterbacked the Spurs' late surge. "That (jinx) ended right here tonight."

The Spurs, who had frittered away a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference series, led the '76ers by as many as 18 points in the second period and nine at halftime.

The San Antonio-Washington series opens Friday in Landover, Md.

The Game Can Be Serious But Still Retain Enjoyment

To many caught up in the rush and bustle of today's professional and even some amateur sport, it seems that those who play over-40s rugby have struck just the right philosophy. They take it seriously but don't let that seriousness spoil the fun of it all.

Serious is what the B.C. oldsters will need to be, though, on Saturday when they take on a touring over-40 team from England's Northampton Club at 2 p.m. on UVic's Wallace Field. For, with men like the famed Jeff Butterfield aboard and most of the players only in their early or mid-40s, the visitors will be tough and the locals will know they're not on a picnic.

Now 50 but still supremely fit, Butterfield played centre for England, the touring British Lions and for the glamor side, Barbarians. Two others on the Northampton team — lock John Currie and scrum-half Trevor Wintle — have represented England and the Baabaas. In fact, it wasn't so long ago that Wintle played in that class as he's only 38! Currie, now 47, is one of England's national selectors.

Oldest players with the touring side are a couple of 52-year-olds, one of whom is among 16 visitors to have played for their county during their career.

That contrasts sharply with the ages of some players in the Vancouver Island Rugby Union's Ebb Tide and the Vancouver clubs from which the B.C. over-40 team will be selected.

Take the Ebb-Tide (which tackled Northampton yesterday in Duncan) for example. Though many of the well-known regulars like Don Burgess, Tillman Briggs, Lin Paterson, George Wilson and Ray Calton are in their late 40s, there are several in their 50s and 60s and there's the legendary Campbell Forbes, who at 71 still plays wing-forward.

"Campbell toured Japan with Canada's national team back in 1932," Ebb-Tide president Harry Turner said recently. "He toured Japan again with the B.C. over-40 team in 1974 and he will be touring Japan for a third time later this year with the Ebb Tide."

"Ebb Tide was formed in 1972 when the Japanese Wak-Wak team from Osaka planned a tour to B.C. and wanted someone to play," Turner, who is 53 and plays regularly himself, explained.

Dave MacKenzie, a former Olympic sprinter and rugby great, and Bob Hutchison got together and founded the Ebb Tide. MacKenzie, who was Brentwood College principal at that time, is now based in Hong Kong and will join the Ebb Tide side for matches there and in Japan.

"Many of us went to Japan with the B.C. over-40 team in 1974," Turner said. "Then the Ebb Tide played in Hawaii in 1976 and toured England and Scotland in 1977."

This year, after a hectic tour that will see 14 games played in Hong Kong and Japan, they'll stop off for a couple of days' rest in Hawaii.

"We're real travellers!" stressed Turner.

But the main thing is, they have a good time.

"We take it very seriously — but we're out to enjoy it," the club president explained. "With good sportsmanship and good hard play. It's a bit of both. We don't get into the knock 'em down and drag it out of 'em bit."

The club motto is "Serious Rugby for Fun and Fellowship" and, maybe I'm being a bit of an idealist but isn't that the way it ought to be?

BOWDEN FIRES ONE-HITTER

Perfection Missed

Lorne Bowden came up with a close-to-perfect game Wednesday to lead Tally-Ho to a 7-0 victory over Labatts in Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League action at Central Park.

Bowden picked up the one-hit pitching victory by striking out six batters and walking none.

Frank Cooper hit a two-out single in the second inning to spoil the "perfect" designation but catcher Paul Kraeling helped Bowden out by picking off Cooper with a throw to second baseman Keith Heppell.

John Martin led the Tally-Ho attack with two singles in three trips to the plate, scored once and drove in two runs.

At Heywood Avenue Park, designated hitter Al Goldade and Bob Butler wielded the mightiest bats to lead Capital Builders to a 7-1 Heywood Men's League victory over Ingraham Hotel.

Goldade smacked a single and a home run in three trips to score twice and drive in two runs while Butler drove in three runs with a timely double in the second inning.

In Victoria Senior Women's League play at Hyacinth Park, Island Dryco Breakers tripped Esquimalt Combos 9-5 and VI 90 tumbled Capital City Pirates, 14-0.

Campbell Heads Up Camp Batting Stats

Warren Campbell of Victoria and Rob Guenther of Saskatoon topped the statistic list in the Victoria Budgets' training camp at Royal Athletic Park to select four additional players for the Pan-American Games.

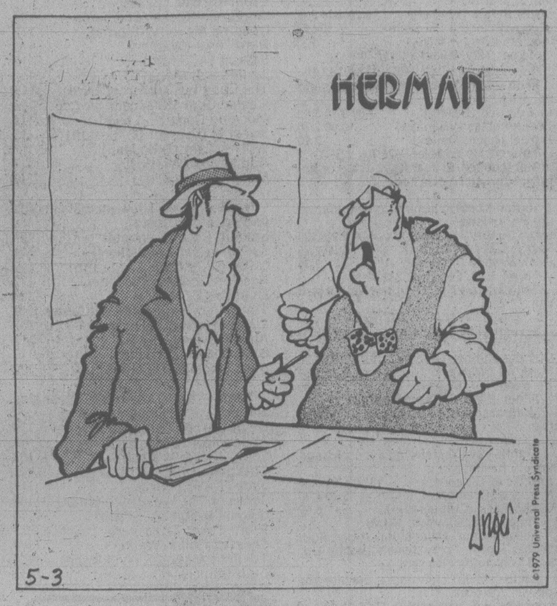
Canadian-champion Budgets will form the 14-player nucleus of the softball team representing Canada in San Juan, Puerto Rico in July.

Campbell, a rookie infielder, had seven hits on 15 trips to the plate during intra-squad exhibitions this week to top batters with a .465 average.

Guenther emerged as the outstanding pitcher by striking out 16, walking none, allowing only three hits and holding opponents runless in 11 innings.

John Green of Budgets was second in batting with a .400 average, clubmate Alden Govenlock was third at .308 and Mike Henderson of Nova Scotia topped the visitors with .279.

Orange beat White 2-1 in a nine-inning exhibition game Wednesday night and the camp was scheduled to wrap up early today.



"Why do I get the feeling that if I drop this check it'll jump up and break the window?"

City Rugby Sides Chasing B.C. Title

BURNABY — Oak Bay Barbarians, Victoria Titans, Claremont Spartans and Port Alberni Chieftains are here today to represent Vancouver Island as the British Columbia high school rugby championship tournament gets underway at Central Valley Complex.

St. Michael's University School won the Greater Victoria title this season but opted out of the tournament, letting Spartans advance into the third berth for the southern end of the Island.

The 16-team tourney opens with round-robin competition in four divisions with the top two teams from each section advancing to the single-loss elimination playoff.

Barbarians, who finished second in Greater Victoria, has been drawn in with Point Grey of Vancouver, Tweedsmuir of the Fraser Valley and New Westminster.

Titans, who were edged into third place late in the season, will be in a group with Mountain of the Valley, Cranbrook and Vernon; Spartans are with North Kamloops, Centennial of Coquitlam and Hillside of West Vancouver and Chieftains play Vancouver-champion Magee, Kelowna and North Delta.

Play starts at 10 a.m. each day and the championship final is scheduled for 1 p.m. Saturday.

Chicken Scratched

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Because he has run afoul of management, the KGB Chicken will be missing at San Diego Stadium tonight when the Padres return from a two-week road trip.

Ted Giannoulas, the man inside the chicken suit since 1974, is sitting out an indefinite suspension over a contractual dispute with the chicken sponsor, radio station KGB.

The station said it will not send Giannoulas's replacement to the ballpark today "because he's not quite ready for the bigtime," said station program director Rick Leibert.

Giannoulas, a native of London, Ont., has called his replacement "a counterfeit chicken."

The dispute is over ownership rights to the Chicken and breaches of agreement," said Leibert. He added that there will be a KGB Chicken, with or without Giannoulas.

Giannoulas, who last year is reported to have turned down a $100,000 offer to take his act to Ted Turner's Atlanta Braves, said there has been no developments in the stalemate.

Giannoulas, whose reported $50,000-a-year contract expires in September, was ordered to turn in his chicken suit and other memorabilia.

The Chicken has become one of San Diego's best-known mascots and because of his popularity has hatched a new breed of chicken at ballparks around the country.

British Again Tackle Czechs

MADRID (AP) — Britain and Czechoslovakia qualified Wednesday for the quarter-finals of the $110,000 Federation Cup tennis tournament, creating a replay of last year's Cup final when Britain, seeded third this year, beat the fifth-seeded Czechs.

The British beat Belgium while the Czechs sidelined Sweden in straight sets.

In other matches Wednesday, the Soviet Union waltzed to an easy victory over unseeded Luxembourg.

The Soviets will be matched against Switzerland, 2-1 winners over Romania, in the quarter-finals Friday.

The United States, the top seed of the tournament and the defending champion, plays its first match today against unseeded Germany. The U.S. got a first-round bye after the Philippines dropped out of the tournament.

EVINRUDE INVENTED IT.

Go with experience

In 1968, we built the first multi-cylinder loop-charged Evinrude® outboard. We not only developed the motor; we invested five years and millions of dollars developing the complex technology that made it possible to adapt loop-charging to a multi-cylinder water cooled outboard.

Today, eleven years later, people are still trying to copy the motor and the technology. Meanwhile we've been further improving and refining our loop-charged mid-range outboards.

What is Loop-Charging?

In a loop-charged outboard the pistons are flat, the combustion chambers domed, the intake and exhaust ports matched.

The result is an efficient looping flow of fresh fuel into the cylinder, one which quickly pushes the exhaust out into the tuned exhaust system.

Fast, Dependable Starting

Evinrude's Firepower™ III electronic ignition (4 hp up) has a new sealed ferrite core coil. It delivers a quick long-lasting spark for fast, dependable starting.

Tuned Exhaust for More Power and Fuel Economy

EVINRUDE

Built for Performance

Patented pressure-backed piston rings reduce power-wasting friction and ring sticking is virtually eliminated.

Underwater shape and gearing is the result of years of hydrodynamic research, high speed dynamometer drag boat testing, and World Championship racing experience.

Evinrude's loop-charged 2-cylinder (50 & 55 hp) and 3-cylinder (70 & 75 hp) engines cover the performance spectrum from slalom skiing to bass fishing to World Championship racing.

No Policy on Restraining Jackets

Oak Bay Manor has no set policy on teaching staff the correct use of restraining jackets for patients, a coroner's jury was told Wednesday night.

Nurse's aide Roberta McKinty told the jury, inquiring into the Easter morning death of Millicent Steele, 92, that she had received no formal instruction and learned how to put the belt on by watching and assisting other aides.

Undergraduate nurse Margaret Lavelle said there is a manual available showing the correct procedure.

McKinty testified she made bedside checks of Mrs. Steele at 1 a.m. and 3 a.m. and found her dead in a kneeling position by her bed still bound in her restraining jacket at 6 a.m.

Lavelle said she made similar checks at midnight, 2 a.m. and 4 a.m. and found nothing untoward.

Both witnesses described Mrs. Steele as a difficult patient.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre adjourned the inquest to tonight for further evidence.

Mrs. Steele was one of two patients found dead Easter morning wearing restraining jackets.

On Monday another jury ruled the death of the other, Florence Scarth, 95, as accidental, attached no blame, but recommended some modification to the jackets used to restrain patients.

Meanwhile, Dr. William McArthur, chief coroner of B.C., said he hopes Attorney-General Garde Gardom's order of a probe into the operation of the manor will not be initiated until the Steele inquest in completed.

And Dr. Scott Wallace has demanded an apology from manor owner, N.B. Cook Corp., and Joanne Eschauzier, vice-president of nursing operations, for comments made at the Scarth inquest Monday night.

Eschauzier had said she had a document from the provincial long-term care department stating that certain confused patients — one of them Wallace's — should be made to sleep on mattresses on the floor.

Wallace denied there was any such regulation issued by the department and charged the manor administration with trying to cover up its tracks on the issue.

Mortgage Burning Set

Lieut.-Gov. and Mrs. Henry Bell-Irving will be present Saturday when the Victoria unit of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans of Canada holds a ceremonial burning of the $100,000 mortgage on its headquarters at 1001 Wharf Street.

The Wharf Street ceremony will take place at 8 p.m. followed by entertainment and refreshments

Two Survive Forced Landing

A California pilot and his passenger were found unharmed at 2 a.m. today after a forced landing Wednesday in heavily-wooded country near the B.C.-Yukon boundary.

They are pilot James R. Hill, 50, and Dave Siedel, 51, both of Yucaipa.

They were located through the plane's electronic locator transmitter beacon by a Hercules aircraft from CFB Edmonton.

A Canadian armed forces spokesman said that fuel will be ferried into them so they can carry on with their flight. The plane was not damaged in the landing.

He said the ELTC beacon was the reason the crash site was so easily discovered because they were well north of their intended flight pattern.

The single-engine Stinson plane had left Fort Nelson at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday for a two-hour flight to Watson Lake in the Yukon.

Officials said the pilot radioed that he was lost, out of fuel and about to crash-land. The weather was cloudy.

Driver Hunted In Crash

Central Saanich police are looking for the driver of a car that was demolished after it sheared off a power pole and skidded into a ditch on Stellys Crossroad near Windemere Place Wednesday night.

Police arrived within minutes of the accident reported at 8:09 p.m., but found the car abandoned.

Nearby residents who heard the crash saw three youths run off.

From marks left at the scene the car skidded 190 feet before striking the pole. The impact tore out the centre of the pole throwing it a distance of 50 feet. The car, a 1970 Firebird, then continued down the road another 180 feet and came to rest on its side in a ditch.

Police said they were hoping to interview the owner of the car, David Bartleman of 850 Stellys, later today.

Priorities:

Vic Stephens questions the priorities of a Government which would spend $25,000,000 on one sports complex in Vancouver and $25,000,000 to be divided among all the hospitals in British Columbia. Progressive Conservatives would relate their priorities to the urgent needs of people.

Herring Roe Loss Feared

VANCOUVER (CP) — Herring roe processors in B.C., some of whom paid up to $5,000 a ton for herring, may be forced to take a loss this year if they want to get rid of the valuable processed roe, Gerry Spitz, president of the B.C. Fisheries Association, said Wednesday.

Spitz said there has been some buyer resistance in Japan, where 90 per cent of the herring roe is sold.

He said there are several reasons for the resistance, including Japanese economic conditions, a wait-and-see attitude by Japanese buyers who are watching the herring roe season in Alaska and the seasonal appeal of the roe.

However, Spitz said, there is no need for panic because the selling season is only now moving into high gear.

B.C. fishermen took in 43,000 tons of herring this season, somewhat less than the projected 60,000 tons. The roe taken from the herring will amount to about 4,500 tons.

The smaller-than-anticipated catch and an increase in boats and processors led to increased competition on the fishing grounds off the B.C. coast. In some cases prices paid to fishermen increased 500 per cent over last year.

Spitz said there is no question that all the roe will be sold, but some processors, particularly the smaller ones, will have trouble making enough money to break even.

Gary Jackson, spokesman for Pacific Rim Fisheries in Bamfield, said his firm and other large processing companies have had no trouble getting rid of the roe because of arrangements made in advance with Japanese companies.

His firm, in which a Japanese company is a minor shareholder, was able to get a down payment before the season started and then purchase the herring from B.C. fishermen at a price they knew would leave them in a competitive situation.

In some cases, however, smaller processors, speculating on what they could get on the Japanese market, paid fishermen up to $5,000 a ton for the herring.

Now they are finding, Jackson said, that the Japanese are not offering them enough money for the processed roe to break even.

"They (the processors) got caught up in the whole scene and emotionally lost control," he said.

Dad Admitted Beating His Wife, Son Testifies

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — The son of a woman who was beaten badly testified Wednesday in county court that his father had admitted to beating the woman.

Fred Rawson, 15, was testifying in the trial of Frederic Earl Rawson, charged with assault causing bodily harm to his 34-year-old wife Maude, Aug. 13, 1977, here.

The case was raised in the legislature in June, 1978, when New Democrat Rosemary Brown, MLA for Vancouver-Burrard, complained that police had taken a long time to lay charges in the incident. She also asked for an investigation of how the police handled the case.

The younger Rawson said that immediately after the incident his father admitted beating his mother.

The boy said he returned home about 1 a.m. the day after the beating and found traces of blood in the kitchen and living room.

Isabelle McKee, Mrs. Rawson's sister told court that she had pursued the case with RCMP and had wanted to see Rawson charged. She denied, however, that she taken the matter to the attorney-general's office and MLAs.

She said she related the incident to a Prince Rupert activist group called Options for Women, which is seeking funding for a transition house for battered wives.

Evans told court that he arrived with his wife at the Rawson home about 10:30 that evening after Rawson phoned and told them he could not wake his wife.

Evans said that the boy came home about 30 minutes later, spoke briefly to his father and left.

The usual low-cost stereo system, with its "house brand" speakers, sounds a lot like a politician at the end of a boring campaign dinner. (Kind of windy and empty is what we have in mind.)

But thanks to a pair of the Advent/2 speakers, our new $735. stereo system sounds like music (and love and late-night lingering).

The Advent/2's are absolutely amazing acoustic-suspension speakers with rich, detailed sound and bass response that comes within a half-octave of the best you can do at any price. They can—and will—totally change people's expectations of low cost speakers.

To drive them, we have the new Onkyo TX 250011 stereo receiver. Its clean, low-distortion sound combines with excellent A.M. and F.M. reception and full control flexibility.

The record player, the N.A.D. 202 semi-automatic turntable with the Nagatron 185e cartridge and diamond stylus, will take care of your records while it finds the music in their grooves.

Kitsilano Spray Postponed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal government has postponed indefinitely plans to spray pesticide over Vancouver's Kitsilano area after city council, reflecting doubts expressed by the Greenpeace Foundation and local residents, voted Wednesday against the program.

With final say in such programs, Agriculture Canada had planned to use carbaryl to try to eradicate the leaf-eating gypsy moth in a 44-block area, but assistant deputy minister Gerry Fleischmen announced the postponement after council voted to ask for a cancellation.

The decision rendered academic an injunction for which Greenpeace applied Wednesday to stop the program which was to have started early this morning. It already had been delayed 24 hours to allow for the special council meeting.

Fleischmen said his department still will provide instructions for residents who want to use carbaryl, available in stores, on their own property and will participate in a task force to try to find solutions other than chemical spraying.

"A volunteer-type program, in my opinion, has a very slight chance of eradication," he said. "It might provide some sort of control, but what we were going after was eradication."

The gypsy moth, which federal officials say could defolitate all the deciduous trees in the area and has long been a problem in eastern Canada, was first found here last fall. It apparently had been imported into the area on a canoe from Quebec.

Federal officials originally suggested spraying an even stronger pesticide from helicopters, but scaled down their plans to spraying carbaryl from tanker trucks.

There was strong opposition, however, in Kitsilano, a residential area which is home for a large part of the city's counter-culture element and also the site of Greenpeace's office.

About 200 area residents, including several children and a mother nursing her baby, crammed into council chambers for the 4½-hour meeting Wednesday.

Three federal officials and the city's acting medical health officer defended the program. Though residents were to keep themselves and their pets inside during the spraying, they said the chemical, in the dosages to be used, would present no health problems.

Fleischmen said the program presented "a reasonable chance of eradication of this insect, at this time, in this area," but none of the officials could guarantee that the moths, now in their larvae stage, would be wiped out.

While several anti-spraying spokesmen agreed the moths could be a problem, Greenpeace president Patrick Moore said they aren't yet.

He said the majority of Kitsilano residents perceive the chemical as a health threat that could cause cancer or birth defects in babies.

"On the other hand, there is no problem now with the gypsy moth, though there might be one later," he said. "The leaves are fine in Kitsilano so far this spring. The gypsy moth is at best an invisible threat."

Inquiry Adjourns

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — An industrial inquiry commission looking into the lengthy strike-lockout at the Gibraltar mine Wednesday was adjourned to May 26.

The dispute was the longest in British Columbia mining history. It began May 26, 1978, and ended Feb. 7.

The mine located north of this Central Interior community is operated by Placer Developments Ltd. The union is the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers.

A spokesman for the commission said at least four or five more days of hearings will be needed before a decision can be reached.

Police Shots Investigated

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police launched an internal investigation Wednesday after a car chase in which a constable fired his gun six times.

A 27-year-old man, a resident of the west end, was in custody.

Police didn't give details about the officer involved, but said six shots were fired at the wheels of a pickup truck as the vehicle pulled away from a roadblock.

The pickup was spotted later and the driver fled into bush.

Judge Quits Hooker Trial

VANCOUVER (CP) — Judge Eric Bendrodt, who received medical treatment for alcoholism after picking up a prostitute on a city street last year, has disqualified himself from hearing a bawdy house case in provincial court.

Bendrodt said that, after "anxious consideration," he had decided not to hear the case of Cheryl Henrietta Flegel, 19, charged with keeping a common bawdy house in May, 1978.

He began hearing the case Oct. 24, but it was adjourned while a seven-man British Columbia Judicial Council panel ruled that no action should be taken against the 44-year-old judge for his action in picking up a prostitute Oct. 18 at Georgia and Hornby Streets.

Bendrodt said that he could "conclude this case applying the proper principles of law," but "there is an over-riding principle of our law that justice must not only be done, but must manifestly appear to be done."

He said that, under the circumstances, it would be inappropraite to handle the case that involved an alleged prostitute.

Colonist Cuts Back

Deliveries of The Daily Colonist to the Vancouver area have been cut because of limited newsprint supply, circulation director Roy Comrie said Wednesday.

Comrie said up to 3,000 copies a day of the Colonist had been going to Vancouver since a strike-lockout shut down that city's two major dailies six months ago.

About 300 copies a day will still be shipped to a Vancouver news agent, Universal News, and several hundred copies will be mailed to subscribers in the Vancouver area.

Delay Sought by Meier

VANCOUVER (UPC) — Former Howard Hughes' aide John Meier has appealed to Justice Minister Marc Lalonde to delay his deportation to the United States until the federal government can further study his case, says his defence lawyer.

Meier, wanted by U.S. authorities on two charges of obstructing justice, was refused permission by the Supreme Court last week to appeal a deportation order issued December 1978.

Defence lawyer John Taylor said Wednesday he sent "an urgent telegram" to Lalonde asking him to delay Meier's deportation until after the election, so the government can "study the loopholes" in the extradition treaty and hear his appeal against the order.

"The clause in the extradition treaty between Canada and the U.S. under which Meier may be deported was never intended to include cases such as this," Taylor argued.

Taylor said if Meier was deported it would be an "unfair, inhumane and an act of injustice by the government."

"It (the treaty) was intended to control such things as fraudulent interstate and across-the-border commerce, the transfer of stolen vehicles across state lines and the international border, and things like that.

"If the justice minister allows the Meier decision to stand, it could mean that Canadian citizens could be deported to the U.S. for such offences as avoiding U.S. income tax or violations of customs and immigration regulations."

Meier was wanted in the United States on two charges of obstructing justice arising from a civil suit against him by the Hughes Tool Company of Utah. The suit alleged he defrauded Hughes of almost $8 million on the sale of Nevada mining claims.

Meier was ordered extradited from Canada last December after a three-day hearing. The Federal Court rejected his appeal of the order and last week the Supreme Court also turned down his application to appeal deportation.

Meier, his wife and three children were granted landed immigrant status when they came to Canada in 1972. He became a Canadian citizen in 1977.

Sign of Spring: Lamb

One of the sure signs of spring is fresh lamb on the meat counter, and what better way to welcome spring than with the mild succulent flavor of a classic roast of lamb.

Lamb has become the preferred choice in many housholds seeking an economic red meat. And with modern freezing methods, many are finding lamb offers a taste of spring any time of year.

Roast uncovered on a rack in a moderately slow oven (325°F or 180°C) about 25 minutes per pound for medium rare if thawed, 37 minutes if frozen. For well donw lamb, cook 33 minutes per pound if thawed, 45 minutes per pound if frozen.

A leg weighing about five pounds will serve eight and is delicious with new potatoes, young zucchini, and a fresh mint sauce

Quality Salad Bar Produced at Home

By PEGGY KATALINICH

Even though it's a relatively new phenomenon, the salad bar has quickly become a North American institution, taking its place alongside Sunday brunch as a certified restaurant ritual.

But there's no need to travel outside your own kitchen to enjoy the splendors of spring salads. By making them yourself, you can exert control over the spread, eliminating those fake "bacon" nuggets made from soybeans in favor of the real thing, and adding your favorite vegetables instead of settling for the common denominator.

You can make your salad bar as elegant as desired — ratatouille, the French melange of eggplant and tomatoes, could be included, along with the Italian version called caponata. Give it a Chinese flavor with bean sprouts, baby ears of corn and a vinaigrette made with rice wine vinegar.

The following selection of recipes would serve six to eight people easily. Add a crusty bread, dry white wine and fresh fruit for dessert.

MARINATED VEGETABLE STICKS

1 pound green beans
4 medium carrots
1 cup cider vinegar
6 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dill weed
¼ teaspoon caraway seeds

1. Cut ends off beans. Pare carrots and cut into thin strips about 3 inches long. Combine vegetables in saucepan; add lightly salted water to cover. Cover and cook just until tender, about 10 minutes. Drain, reserving 1-2 cup cooking liquid. Place vegetables in shallow container.

2. Combine reserved cooking liquid with vinegar, sugar, salt, dill and caraway seeds. Heat until sugar dissolves. Pour over beans and carrots. Cover and refrigerate at least 3 hours. Makes 6 servings.

SPICY LENTIL SALAD

2 cups dry lentils
3 garlic cloves
2 fresh hot red or green peppers, seeded and chopped, or 1 dried
⅓ 3 cup olive oil
1 teaspoon salt
3 to 6 tablespoons vinegar
½ cup minced onion
Black pepper to taste

1. Wash Lentils. Place in pan with water to cover and bring to a boil; reduce heat to simmer. Add whole peeled garlic and red pappers. (If using dried, leave whole.) Simmer about 20 to 30 minutes or until lentils are tender. Do not overcook.

2. Drain. Discard garlic (and whole pepper, if used). Place in a bowl; add oil and salt and refrigerate until chilled. When cold, add vinegar, onion and black pepper to taste. Makes 6 servings.

CABBAGE REMOULADE

1 small head red cabbage, about 1½ pounds
1 cup mayonnaise, preferably homemade
1 tablespoon each chopped dill pickles, capers, parsley
2 teaspoons each mustard and tarragon
1 teaspoon anchovy paste, optional
2 green onions, chopped including some tops

1. Shred cabbage and set aside.

2. Combine mayonnaise, pickles, capers, parsley, mustard, tarragon, chervil and anchovy paste. Stir well. Combine with cabbage and chill. To serve, top with green onions. Makes 6 servings.

CHINESE TURKEY SALAD

1 small head lettuce, shredded
4 green onions, chopped
2 cups cooked turkey (or chicken), shredded
2 ribs celery, shredded
2 cups chow mein noodles
1 cup slivered toasted almonds

For dressing:

¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon each salt and pepper
½ cup oil (half peanut)
6 tablespoons wine vinegar
1 clove garlic, crushed.

1. In a salad bowl, combine lettuce, green onions, turkey and celery and toss.

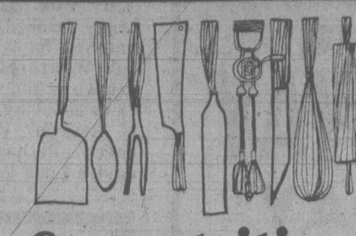
2. Combine sugar, salt, pepper, oil, vinegar and garlic until mixed. Pour over salad.

Menu for a Great Dinner

By MARIAN BURROS
Washington Post

Bethine Church's Idaho dinner menu last week, which featured sugar snap peas, began with several hors d'oeuvres: tomatoes with crabmeat in a remoulade sauce, individual bacon and onion quiches, shrimp paste on toast rounds and pineapple with yogurt dip.

For dinner she served a cream of carrot soup, using Idaho carrots. The fish course was poached Idaho trout served cold with dill sauce. Then came veal medallions with artichoke hearts and mushroom sauce, baked stuffed Idaho potatoes and the sugar snap peas. They were steamed and then dressed with a little butter and salt. A Boston lettuce salad had hearts of palm and cashews in a garlic dressing. Dessert was raspberry macaroon mousse.



Food & nutrition

Whether using Idaho produce or not, the menu would be a success anywhere.

TROUT IN DILL SAUCE
(8 Servings)

8 trout, with heads and tails intact
1 medium carrot
1 medium onion
2 stalks celery, sliced
5 parsley sprigs
1 small bay leaf
Pinch thyme
Juice of 1 lemon
2 cups dry white wine
2 cups water
Fish heads and trimmings

Combine all ingredients except the trout and simmer until vegetables are soft. Strain through several layers of cheesecloth and chill before poaching fish.

Fillet fish and place fish fillets in bottom of shallow baking dish. Pour bouillon over just to cover and place over moderate heat, bringing liquid just to simmering point. Place dish in 350-degree oven and bake until fish flakes easily, about 10 minutes. Cool fish completely in bouillon; remove and flake. Shape flaked fish into serving-size mounds and place on bed of lettuce. Serve with dill sauce.

DILL SAUCE

2 egg yolks
4 tablespoons heavy cream
½ cup vinaigrette
1 teaspoon lemon juice, or to taste
¼ teaspoon minced fresh dill

Beat yolks and cream in bowl until thoroughly blended. Then beat in vinaigrette in a stream of droplets, as if making mayonnaise. Season to taste with lemon juice; stir in dill. Chill.

To make vinaigrette: Beat 3-4 cup oil with 1-4 cup tarragon vinegar and 1-4 teaspoon dry mustard.

CREAM OF CARROT SOUP
(8 Servings)

1 pound young carrots
4 cups chicken stock or broth
3 cloves garlic
½ cup heavy cream
Salt and pepper to taste
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon turmeric
Chopped parsley for garnish

(If you can get very young carrots, use a little of the tops, chopped up, in the soup.) Slice carrots 1-2 inch thick. Place in large saucepan with chicken stock and bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer 20 minutes; cool. Add garlic and process with steel blade in food processor or puree in blender. Reheat. Stir 1 cup of warm soup into cream and combine with remaining soup. Bring to simmering point. Do not boil or soup may curdle. Season to taste with salt and pepper, nutmeg and turmeric. Serve sprinkled with parsley.

Poached Cavier A Crime

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian caviar, rarer and more expensive than ever before, has become a black-market item in its native land. Caviar poaching has become a big-time crime.

Pollution, over-fishing and the government's hunger for foreign currency have made the delicacy virtually impossible to find in stores here. Its price, when it briefly appears (and immediately disappears), is up to $70 a kilogram, or 2.2 pounds. In New York top-grade Russian caviar sells for about $240 for a 14-ounce can.

More and more reports are appearing in the Russian press about large-scale caviar black marketeering, with warnings of unspecified long sentences to be given the offenders.

Caviar rarely reaches the counter of even Moscow's most extensive fish store, the Okean on Prospect Mira. Somewhere along the line from the busy hatcheries of the Caspian Sea, it disappears.

A series of giant hydroelectrical dams along the Volga River which feeds into the Caspian, along with pollution of the river and the sea, have caused a steady drop in caviar production since the post-Second World War days, when many Russians remember eating thick caviar sandwiches for breakfast.

Smoking Harmful to Unborn

By L. L. Coleman, MD

My wife, 22, is a very heavy smoker. We've been married for a year and a half. We are seriously trying to have a child. Am I mistaken in believing that tobacco is harmful during pregnancy? Perhaps with your advice I can get her to stop at least during the time she is pregnant.—MR. R.R.J.

DEAR MR. J.: The role of parents-to-be carries a great responsibility. In this scientific age, much information is being accumulated that insures the birth of a stronger and healthier baby.

A recent study, jointly made by the United States and Canada, definitely links smoking during pregnancy to a higher risk in unborn children. Some precise studies have also found that babies born to smoking mothers weigh less than those born to non-smokers. It has been found that the weight difference is proportionate to the number of cigarettes smoked by the mother. It has also been found that the nicotine in cigarettes adversely affects the breathing movements of the unborn child.

Scientific measurements have shown, too, that carbon monoxide in the blood of both the mother and the fetus is increased when the mother smokes during pregnancy.

Doctors and obstetricians urge that women avoid "elective drugs" because of the possibility of damaging the developing fetus. Unless a drug is urgently needed for some associated medical condition, it should not be taken.

Alcohol is a drug that is responsible for the "fetal alcohol syndrome." Reliable studies indicate that there is a direct relationship between the amount of alcohol consumed during pregnancy and the frequency of birth defects.

Dr. Sumner J. Yaffe, of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, says, "The chief source of protection to the unborn child lies in the heightened understanding by prospective parents of the potential dangers of drugs and chemicals during pregnancy."

In the light of these well-established proofs, pregnant women owe themselves and their children the gift of planned health. Tobacco, drugs and alcohol are not nearly as important as the health destiny of a child.

What is the best immediate treatment for a bump on the head that is beginning to turn black and blue?—MRS. G.B.

DEAR MRS. B.: I'm sure your black-and-blue bump is fine by now, but . . . for the next one: The immediate treatment should be pressure over the site of the injury. Then, ice packs should be used to slow down the seepage of blood. A black-and-blue mark simply means that a blood vessel has broken and that blood has seeped into the soft tissue. After about an hour, switch to heat packs, to help absorb the blood, reduce the swelling and help return the tissue to normal.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't laugh at my question, or throw this away thinking it's from some silly kid. It's not. I'm a normal, 33-year-old man who would like to learn how to be a great lover.

I know what to DO, but I don't know what to say to a lady while I'm making love to her. I feel as though I should be saying something. But what?

They don't have schools for this sort of thing and I can't ask anyone to give me lessons. I have very few hangups, and I've never had any trouble with my love life, but I'd like to know how to make my partner feel really great.

WANTS TO PLEASE

DEAR WANTS: Anyone who sincerely wants to make his partner feel "really great" is well on his way to becoming a great lover. You say you have very few hangups. Fine, because frank dialogue with one's partner is essential. There's also a wealth of information to be found in books. And finally, practice makes perfect.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have some good friends I'll call Marge and Bob. We had some terrific times together until they began having marital problems. They kept calling and asking if they could come over to talk. Their talks always ended up in shouting matches. Nothing was ever settled, and it made wrecks of us, so we asked them not to come over to talk anymore.

Now they call us on the phone and talk endlessly. First Marge calls me and complains about Bob, and when she hangs up, Bob calls and tells my husband his version of the story.

Abby, I know good friends are supposed to be supportive, but we're out of patience with these two.

How can we refuse to listen without giving them the impression that we don't care. We do.

GOOD FRIENDS

DEAR FRIENDS: Tell them that BECAUSE you are such good friends you can't view their situation objectively. Urge them to seek help from a qualified marriage counselor. It could save their marriage — and your friendship.

DEAR ABBY: You told a reader whose husband kept bringing home unexpected dinner guests, "Quit being a GOOD scout — be a GIRL Scout instead, and be prepared!"

Abby, "Be Prepared" is the motto of the BOY Scouts — not the GIRL Scouts.

Girls have succeeded in invading nearly all of the male organizations. Can't the Boy Scouts be kept separate from the Girl Scouts, without making them share a common motto?

EAGLE SCOUT

DEAR EAGLE: Your knowledge of Scouting is for the birds. "Be Prepared" is the motto for Girl Scouts, too. (Scout's honor!)

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know the correct way to wear my wedding ring set. Which ring goes on first — the engagement ring or the wedding band? And what is the reason for it?

MRS. W.W.

DEAR MRS. W.: The wedding band goes on first. I don't know the reason for it, but I like to think that the wedding ring is closer to the heart.

60-MINUTE GOURMET

By PIERRE FRANEY

If I had to name one single ultimate cut of meat that would produce the finest, quickly cooked dishes of which any cook is capable, it would probably be scallopine of veal. Veal scallopine (sometimes called cutlets) has all the qualities to be desired for a hastily produced and excellent main course.

First of all, quick cooking is essential with scallopine. If it takes too long, it tends to dry out or to lose its moist inner goodness. Second, the nature of the veal is such that it marries well with a multitude of flavors. It is the perfect foil for such bland foods as mushrooms in cream sauce (veal with morels a la creme is one of the sublime dishes of the world).

It is complemented by tomato sauce in almost any form. It takes well to spicy things like mustard and is oddly complemented by fish and seafood — consider vitello tonnato with tuna and anchovies, and veal a la Oskar with crawfish, shrimp or crabmeat.

One of the finest and most basic of scallopine dishes is scallopine of veal with fines herbes. As pointed out on numerous occasions, the traditional fines herbes in French kitchens are parsley, tarragon, chervil and chives.

The preparation of the dish consists in cooking veal scallopine — thin slices that have or should be pounded lightly with a flat mallet — in very hot butter.

The cooking takes only about forty-five seconds to a side. Only an omelet can cook that quickly to such advantage. And omelets can be boring. Veal, properly cooked, is never boring. The herbs are added along with a bit more butter and the dish is ready to serve.

It is a dish so simple that more attention may be paid to an accompanying vegetable dish. An excellent accompaniment for this would be a savory Italianate ratatouille, this one baked with mozzarella cheese. A bit tangy and good. Prepare the vegetable dish before turning your attention to the veal.

(Veal Scallopine with herbs)

- 16 thin scallopine of veal, about 1¼ lbs.
- Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
- 6 tbsp. butter
- 1 tbsp. finely chopped parsley
- 2 tsp. finely chopped tarragon
- 2 tsp. finely chopped chives

Place the meat on a flat surface and pound lightly. Sprinkle on both sides with salt and pepper to taste. Heat four tbsps. butter in one or two large skillets and when it is very hot add the meat. This may be done in one skillet in two steps. Add the pieces of veal and cook briefly about 45 seconds on each side. As the pieces brown, transfer them to a warm platter.

Add the remaining butter to the skillet and add the parsley, tarragon and chives. Pour the sauce over and serve hot.

(A baked melange of vegetables with mozzarella)

- 3 tbsp. olive oil
- ¾ cup finely chopped onions
- 1 tbsp. finely minced garlic
- 3 cups peeled eggplant cut into 1-inch cubes
- 2 cups trimmed, inpeeled zucchini cut into 1-inch cubes
- 2 sprigs fresh thyme or one teaspoon dried
- 1 bay leaf
- Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
- 1½ cups tomatoes, cored and cut into cubes
- 4 slices mozzarella cheese about ¼-inch thick
- 2 tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese

Preheat the oven to 400°F. Heat the oil in a large heavy skillet. Add the onion and garlic and cook until the onion is wilted. Add the eggplant and zucchini and stir. Cook about one minute and add the thyme, bay leaf, salt and pepper to taste. Cook stirring as necessary to prevent sticking, about five minutes. Add the tomatoes and cook about five minutes longer, shaking the skillet to prevent sticking.

Spoon the mixture into a baking dish and cover with slices of mozzarella cheese. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Place on a baking sheet to catch any dripping. Bake ten minutes.

Freezing is one of the simplest and quickest methods of preserving foods. Through freezing, foods retain proper color, good flavor, and much of their original food value. A wide range of seasonal foods can be enjoyed all year long thanks to freezing.

Enzyme activity is one of the major causes of food spoilage. Freezing slows enzyme activity considerably, enabling many foods to keep well. The growth of undesirable organisms such as bacteria and molds are actually stopped during cold storage.

Washington Post

Workaholics are people who aren't able to join the rest of the family for regular meals because of the pressures of the job, and all those snacks out of cellophane packages and those unsatisfying late-evening leftovers from the refrigerator aren't really satisfactory. But there are ways to get a first class meal, fast.

You, the case study says, are a workaholic.

It's a shame, all those snacks out of cellophane packages and those unsatisfying late-evening leftovers from the refrigerator, because you pride yourself on your appreciation of good cooking. But there just isn't time. How do those people in the Dewar's advertisements do it all?

What you need, short of a food processor and someone to run it for you late in the evening, is a little guidance, a workaholic's cookbook.

Time is a factor. So, probably, is the complexity of the cooking operation and the number of utensils and dishes involved. The simpler and the fewer, the better. Even the noise level may be important if others in your house are already in bed. No sizzling rice soup after 10 p.m.

Our focus here is the evening meal. Your daily activity isn't "normal," so why should your eating schedule conform to a textbook pattern? If you are eating late, with bed to follow soon thereafter, you shouldn't plan on a big meal.

Conversely, if you finish eating at 11 p.m., there is no need to bolt down a calorie-loaded breakfast at 8 a.m. Sure, the person who ate the last morsel of dinner at 6:30 the night before has the appetite to "start the day right.

You might be better off to eat lightly, concentrating on necessary nutrients, and then make lunch the main meal of the day. (I know — you are a workaholic, and there's never time to get away for lunch. But somehow it becomes easier to find time if you're really hungry. If not, you're practicing the most effective of all diet techniques: eating less).

Workaholic A is a meat-and-potatoes person but tries to skip the potatoes because for her they are like a magnet to calorie-rich toppings such as butter and sour cream. Instead, she will cook a green vegetable and flavor it with a little butter and a lot of lemon juice.

As for the meat, be it a steak or chicken breast, the thinner it is, the faster it cooks. She has learned to place the meat between 2 pieces of plastic wrap and pound it with the flat side of a cleaver so it becomes thinner and wider.

She heats a tablespoon of oil in a heavy-bottomed frying pan, lets it become quite hot, then adds the meat. It sears on one side for about 1½ minutes, is turned to the other and cooked until it just gives to a push from the forefinger. Salt and pepper are added after the meat is turned. It goes onto the plate, but she is not done.

Any fat left in the pan is poured out. Into the pan goes ¼ cup red wine or water and (sometimes) a finely minced scallion or a tablespoon of chopped onion or ½ teaspoon of dried thyme. With heat high, she scrapes the bottom with a wooden spoon until the coagulated brown residue comes free and the liquid has cooked down. She tastes and may add salt and pepper. This almost instant sauce goes over the steak, the vegetable is spooned onto the plate and some of the remaining wine goes into a glass. Dinner in 15 minutes.

For a special treat, ½ tablespoon of butter or brandy may be added to the sauce. Cheese, a piece of fruit and maybe another glass of wine provide a trouble-free desert.

Now he regularly prepares and cooks a satisfying one-dish meal in 15 to 25 minutes and has only the wok, the bowl, a kitchen knife, a spatula, fork or chopsticks and a glass or teacup to clean. Sometimes he will prepare some rice separately, or stir-fry leftover rice in the wok. The promise of an exotic meal cooked by a "guest" chef sometimes prompts his wife to feed the children, nibble to forestall her hunger and join him for the late meal.

The "recipe" he follows depends not so much on the number of ingredients, or the amounts, as the method. Its variety is almost infinite, although he prefers that vegetables dominate the meat ingredient, a choice that makes sense both economically and nutritionally.

Cut the meat from 1 or 2 pork chops (or chicken breast halves) from the bone and slice it into thin strips. These may be raw or already cooked. Or slice up some leftover steak or beef.

Push down on a clove or two of garlic with the side of your knife, peel away the skin and slice the garlic into pieces. (If the cloves are large, cut them in half before slicing). Peel an onion — or half an onion, or 2 or 3 scallions — and slice.

Decide on the vegetables you want. This is a fine way to recycle family leftovers, or to use up vegetables that might otherwise go bad. Try to mix something firm, such as broccoli, cauliflower, green beans or green peppers, with softer vegetables such as spinach (or even lettuce), mushrooms or bean sprouts. If someone in the house who is dining earlier will cut up the firm vegetables for you and even steam or boil them until just crisp-tender, so much the better.

Have on hand cooking oil, soy sauce, a chicken bouillon cube or bouillon itself, salt and pepper and any of the following optional incredients: ginger root or powder, sesame oil, dried red peppers or pepper flakes, five-spices powder, sherry, cornstarch.

Heat the wok. If you like food spicy, add the hot peppers and a few grinds of black pepper. When they start to char, add two tablespoons oil. Stir-fry (toss around with a spatula or slotted soon) the garlic, onions and ginger for 30 seconds. Don't let them burn.

Add the meat when the garlic begins to darken and toss it around until browned on all sides. Sprinkle on a tablespoon of soy sauce, remove wok from the heat and spoon everything into the bowl. (You've been cooking two to three minutes. The less time you take, the better).

Return the wok to the heat and add a tablespoon or two of fresh oil. Add the firm vegetables, cut in thin strips, and toss them to coat with oil. Add half a cup of water, a tablespoon or so of soy sauce and, if you wish, a bouillon cube or grains. Fit a cover over the vegetables and let them steam for three minutes, or until just crisp-tender (check with a knife point or fish out a piece and eat it).

Now add the soft vegetable (spinach, lettuce or bean sprouts), any special seasoning such as five-spices powder or a tablespoon of sherry and the meat. Toss, re-cover the wok and allow another minute or so. If you want to thicken the pan juices, mix one tablespoon of cornstarch with two tablespoons of cold water or sherry. Uncover the wok and remove the food to the bowl with a slotted spoon. Stir the liquid cornstarch and half a tablespoon of sesame oil into the liquid. Keep stirring until the mixture thickens, 15 seconds or so, and pour it over the food. Eat!

Everyone knows how handy pasta is, how easy to cook. Yet Workaholic C is one of the few people not studying Italian cooking who has learned that pasta can be served without tomato sauce. This has made him popular beyond belief, and he frequently entertains fellow workaholics at late-evening soirees, thus enabling him to use a jug of wine that would spoil before he drank his way through it alone.

Snacking Needn't be Bad

Food for Thought

By DR. JEAN MAYER
DR. JOHANNA DWYER

A snack, according to the dictionary, is "a small portion of food or drink; a light meal." Most people think of snacks as a bite between meals — something to tide them over from breakfast to lunch, lunch to dinner, or that pleasant morsel that accompanies the late news.

A couple of weeks ago we took a poll among our friends on the subject of snacking. Interestingly, while nearly everybody seems to enjoy snacks, they feel guilty about it, seeing it as a problem in controlling their weight.

Is snacking a bad habit? Not necessarily. There is no law of nature that states we must get all our calories and nutrients in three square meals a day. Indeed, the number and the time of meals is a matter of social convenience, not physiological necessity. As any harried mother knows, children seem to prefer to eat lightly and more often. Recent surveys show this is the case with adults as well. Only very few people eat three meals a day and nothing else.

There is little evidence that eating a number of times during a 24-hour period is a bad thing in itself. In some cases, in fact, it appears to be an improvement. Insulin-dependent diabetics, for example, appear to do better on several small meals rather than three larger ones.

Nor does there appear to be a strong link between the number of times people eat during the day and how much they weigh. Certainly, those who eat often are not necessarily heavier or fatter than those who do not. In fact, there is some evidence to indicate that it may be easier to diet and keep weight under control on several small meals a day.

Whether a snack is good or bad depends on the amount and nutrient content of what is eaten and how it fits into your daily food intake. To see what we mean, look at what we would consider common snacks:

Liquids would include alcoholic beverages, soft drinks, tea and coffee, fruit and vegetable juices, milk and milk-based drinks like cocoa, milkshakes and ice-cream sodas, and, of course, water.

The variety of solid foods in snacks is enormous: ice cream in all its manifestations; ice milk, yogurt, plain, frozen and with fruit; pizza, hamburger, french fries; crackers, cookies, cake, pie, candy; potato and other chips; fruits, vegetable sticks; muffins, doughnuts, sticky buns, cupcakes — and anything else that can be snatched from the refrigerator or cupboard when an attack of the munchies strikes.

Beware of "mystery foods." When you're buying a manufactured snack food from a machine or a vendor, check the label. You can get some idea of what it contains from the ingredients on the label, which lists contents in descending order by weight.

But for an analysis of nutrients and colories, you need a NUTRITION label (and remember even then that the most complete label won't list all 40-odd essential nutrients). For people who are watching their weight, that nutrient-calorie listing is vital, so if a food doesn't have it we suggest you write the manufacturer and ask why.

Choose snacks that are good foods. Looking back at the foods we listed above, we'd suggest fruit and vegetable juices, milk (low-fat, if you're dieting) and, of course, water — the perfect diet drink.

Plain yogurt or cottage cheese, pizza, lean hamburgers, crackers that are low in fat, fresh fruit and raw vegetables, and whole-grain muffins or breads also are snackable. In fact, these foods are part of a good diet whenever you eat them. (Incidentally, potatoes are a good food. If you're not on a diet and can afford the calories, french fries are OK, too.)

Think before you snack. If you're just eating to pass the time, try something else. Go for a walk, start a good book, get into a good discussion, talk your spouse or friend into going dancing.

Remember, even if you've chosen a health snack, don't eat the amount you would normally eat at regular meals. That way you are making sure that snacks are a part of the balanced day, and not an extra that will lead to caloric complications.

Dief Denies Tory Quip

PRINCE ALBERT (UPC) — John Diefenbaker denied Wednesday that he reportedly questioned Joe Clark's leadership ability and said his Conservative colleagues lacked courage.

The 83-year-old former Conservative prime minister said in a radio interview that Prime Minister Trudeau had misinterpreted his remarks made in a weekend interview with the French language daily La Presse.

"Trudeau has a reputation of treating the truth with ingravis contempt," The Chief said in a radio interview.

When asked if he ever said the Tories lacked courage, Diefenbaker snapped angrily: "No, I never said that in very certain terms. That's the end of it. I never made such a statement. Period."

When asked what he did say, Diefenbaker replied, "that's not your business. I told you I didn't say it and that's the end of the conversation."

Diefenbaker, who was prime minister from 1957-63 and Tory chief from Dec. 14, 1956 until losing a bitter leadership battle Sept. 25, 1967, reportedly said "if lack of courage were an essential virtue of statesmen, my party would be full of them."

In an apparent reference to the 39-year-old Clark, Diefenbaker was quoted as saying "Leadership is the most important thing in a country. Government can't be put in the hands of any passing joe."

In 1974, Diefenbaker's criticism of former Conservative leader Robert Stanfield was considered a major factor in that election defeat.

NDP-Union Tie Pushed

ELECTION 79

By PETER HADEKEL
FP News Service

ROSETOWN, Sask. — Prime Minister Trudeau took his campaign into rural Saskatchewan Wednesday to head off the surge in support for the New Democratic Party.

Before farming audiences whose loyalty to the provincial NDP government is strong, Trudeau warned that a vote for the federal NDP would guarantee that "you won't be part of the government, you'll be on the outside looking in."

"You'll be voting for a party which has abandoned its Prairie radical roots and which has now struck up an electoral alliance with the big labor bosses in Ontario."

Trudeau said the NDP had blocked government efforts to end the last grain strike and had consistently tried to lower beef prices.

He said the NDP alliance with Ontario labor has prompted the party to impose price increases for Saskatchewan oil.

As he spoke to attentive audiences here and in Assiniboia, Trudeau stressed the government's record on hot local issues like railway branch line subsidies and grain stabilization programs.

He said his government's investment in hopper cars and rail line subsidies would continue until an efficient grain handling system was achieved.

"In Saskatchewan farm cash receipts last year over the preceding year have gone up 17 per cent,' Trudeau said.

He said national farm cash receipts since 1969 have increased from $700 million to $2.5 billion a year.

He said Saskatchewan, the second largest world producer of potash and the producer of one-third of Canada's uranium is "one of the most progressive provinces in a very strong developing economy."

And using a farm metaphor to describe Joe Clark, Trudeau told his audience that the Conservative leader was like "a weathervane — prepared to swing around according to the prevailing winds."

Touring a grain elevator here, Trudeau was told by Wheat Pool chairman Chris Calvert that Saskatchewan farmers are benefitting from the federal two-price system for wheat and from grain stabilization programs.

"Thank you very, very, very, very much," the Prime Minister said as he continued to mimic Clark's style.

Quebec Tory, Clark Differ

BERTHIERVILLE, Que. (CP) — Roch LaSalle, Joe Clark's chief Quebec lieutenant, appeared to break with official party policy Wednesday, saying nine provinces and the federal government would have to negotiate an economic association with Quebec if an independence referendum was approved.

Campaigning here with the Progressive Conservative leader, LaSalle also stated a position on self-determination for Quebec that differs from Clark's. But the two politicians define self-determination differently.

LaSalle, MP for Joliette, also is the president of the Quebec wing of the party, which has had no strong traditional support in the province.

Clark has repeatedly said a Conservative government would not negotiate sovereignty association, defined by the Quebec government as political independence with an economic association with the rest of Canada.

His view is that one referendum in Quebec provides no federal mandate for such negotiations and gives Quebec no legal authority to unilaterally split from Canada.

Asked to comment on the Clark position, LaSalle said a yes vote would permit Quebec to negotiate an economic association.

Tory Vow Threat to 1,000 Jobs: PSAC

If the Conservatives win the May 22 federal election and leader Joe Clark carries out his promise to eliminate 60,000 public service jobs, 1,000 could be in the Victoria area, according to a union spokesman.

John Hart, regional representative of the Public Service Alliance of Canada, said 400 jobs could disappear at the Dockyard of CFB Esquimalt.

"Our people are really upset," he said.

However, the problem is if they are upset with that prospect they are even more upset with the way the Liberal government has treated the public sector employees.

And the NDP is not the unanimous choice either as there are some party policies which go counter to some of the employees. For example, the NDP is opposed to capital punishment but the union representing the guards and other federal penal institution employees is in favor.

Hart said the PSAC is trying to help its members decide who to vote for by launching what it calls a Fair Deal campaign.

The idea is to find out which candidates in a given area support the public sector employees and vote for them.

In order to find out where some of the Vancouver Island candidates stand on issues the PSAC thinks are important an all-candidates rally will be held May 15 in the Union Centre on Quadra Street at 7:30 p.m.

All candidates from the ridings of Victoria, Esquimalt-Saanich and Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands have been invited and Hart said the union has had a good response.

'Biker' Broadbent Roars into Campbell River

ELECTION 79

By JIM ROBB
FP News Service

CAMPBELL RIVER — New Democratic Party Leader Ed Broadbent went roaring into a political rally Wednesday in this fishing and lumber town of 15,000 on Vancouver Island's east coast.

He just had to be roaring because he was riding pillion on a 750 c.c., Suzuki motorbike driven by Norman Burrows, a motorcycle addict like Broadbent himself.

With former British Columbia premier Dave Barrett at his side, Broadbent tore strips off the Liberals and Conservatives for not speaking out on what he says is one of the two major issues in the federal election — continually rising prices, especially for food.

On each occasion that Broadbent has visited British Columbia he and Barrett have done a "sunshine boys" number because Barrett is seeking re-election in the British Columbia vote May 10.

Broadbent claimed that his party is the only one speaking out on food prices and the failure of Canadians to gain control of developing their own resources.

"We are fighting a campaign in this election on the questions that affect the ordinary people of this land, in every part of this land," Broadbent declared. "We have had in the last three years, prices going up out of all proportion to wages and salaries," he said.

"Last year the average worker in this country lost $690 in real take-home pay because prices went up by nine per cent and wages and salaries at six per cent," Broadbent claimed.

He said that Conservative leader Joe Clark and Prime-Minister Pierre Trudeau were "as interchangeable as anything is interchangeable at all in this country."

"In Ottawa, we have a great opportunity to get rid of those non-serious politicians," Broadbent said. He spoke from a flatbed truck in a seashore park to an audience of 400 or so, mostly retired men and women and office workers who were being lightly sprinkled by rain all the time.

He accused Clark and Trudeau of a "veritable conspiracy of silence," on the issue of rising prices as he had done for the first time the night before in Terrace, B.C.

The NDP leader accused Clark and Trudeau of not wanting to talk about prices "because it would mean they would have th deal, in a fair but tough-minded way, with the corporations."

Ed McMahon: The Calm Eye in Carson's Hurricane

Scott's World

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Though controversy may swirl around The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson, Ed McMahon, Johnny's sidekick, remains as calm as the eye of a hurricane.

He is more than happy to discuss his own professional and personal life, including his mock reputation as a two-fisted drinker, but Carson and his contract differences with NBC are off limits.

The big, good-natured Irishman is in the midst of building a new home in the heart of Beverly Hills. He and his wife of three years, Victoria, are living in a nearby apartment so Ed can play amateur foreman.

Every day Ed, who calls himself a frustrated architect, ambles over to the building site to keep an eye on progress. He takes along his sterling silver measuring tape — a gift from Victoria — to lend an air of professionalism.

Ed's schedule is relatively relaxed despite the demands of two shows. He reports to NBC Studios in Burbank — a half-hour drive from home — at 2 o'clock in the afternoon to pre-tape commercials for The Tonight Show.

He finishes the show at 7 p.m., strolls across the hall to Studio 3 and tapes Whodunnit? which has rehearsed all day with a stand-in.

He describes Whodunnit? as a game show for serious money — $30,000.

"Doing the new show is not that much of an extra burden because it doesn't take that much time, except for the camera moves," Ed says.

He is also involved with fund raising for his alma mater, Catholic University in Washington, D.C., for which he was a two-term president of the alumni assocation.

Talent Range Wows Rose Bowl Judge

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

It was a fine night for song at the Victoria Music Festival, Wednesday. But the crown of the evening belonged to soprano Susan Austin who was awarded the coveted Rose Bowl for her performance of Richard Strauss's Befreit.

For 29 years emblematic of the top adult vocal attainment in the festival, the bowl, filled with red roses and stephanotis, was presented to Susan in a closely contested finalist's event. Runners-up were Ingrid Attrot, Meredythe Broadway, Kathy Domoney and Robert Hall.

In announcing the winner adjudicator Frances Wickberg said that, while the contest is usually confined to four open-class winners, this year the standard had been so exceptional that she had had difficulty confining her selections to five.

"I could easily have chosen a dozen — or more," she said. Victoria is most fortunate in having so many wonderful singers."

The Rose Bowl event was preceded by the intermediate and junior championship contests. The winner of the latter was Jennifer Doyle. Runners-up were Anne Morris, Alisa Horth and Eric Prossnitz. The intermediate award went to Cathy-Anne Skillings; runners-up were Vanessa Li, Stephen Bouey and Gordon Thompson.

Several other awards were announced during the evening. One of the festival's major prizes, presented by the Kiwanis Club of Saanich, is the vocal open performance bursary of $150. This went to Richard Margison who was also named as the festival's representative to the Provincial Festival's senior vocal competition.

Nancy Holmes was named winner of the Adele Lewis Special Award; the Arion Male Choir Award went to Tore Valdal; the girl's sacred solo prize to Lisa Bachop and the folk song prize to Elizabeth Zunti.

Both major choir awards went to out-of-town groups; the Frank Tupman Memorial Junior Choir Award was won by the Port Alberni Senior Girls Choir, and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation Senior Adult Choir Award by the Cowichan Chorale.

Tonight's big event is the schools' honors program which will take place at Reynolds Secondary starting at 7:30.

The festival's other major trophy, the Victoria City Medallion, will be competed for Friday during piano championship sessions at the Fellowship Hall. The championship events are divided into junior, intermediate, senior and open categories. Competitors are chosen by the adjudicators from among the top-rated pianists of the past two weeks.

The program details for the Highlights Concert which concludes the festival Monday at McPherson Playhouse, are already partially sketched in and it promises to be the best ever.

Great care is being taken to keep it under a two-hour length but at the same time offer, in brief, a summary of the best of an outstanding session.

The many people turned away from the Dance Honors event last Monday will be pleased to know that three of the items that enchanted that sell-out audience will be repeated on the Highlights program. The top award singers will be heard and of course, the Medallion pianist.

Sleeping Beauty Scene Changes

The final two performances of Four Seasons' Sleeping Beauty, change location this Saturday and May 12.

Instead of McPherson Playhouse, the children's musical theatre production will be seen this week at Cedar Hill Community Centre and next week at Oak Bay Junior Secondary School. Both performances begin at 2 p.m.

The show starring Shauna Baird as Beauty with John Pugh, Nan Long, Pat Carfra and Steve Moysey, has original musical by Marge Adelberg. It concludes Four Seasons Musical Theatre's 1978-79 series.

Seventeen matinees of three musicals have been presented to average audiences of more than 400, representing an audience growth this season of 100 per cent. Four productions are planned for next year.

Four Seasons has received a grant that will make possible the revival of the free outdoor children's theatre this summer.

Popular in the 1960s the idea was originated for Bastion Theatre by Four Seasons' artistic director Peter Mannering. Planned for July is an adaptation of Treasure Island.

Public Announcement

OTTAWA, April 20, 1979: The CRTC announced today a number of adjustments to its FM policy and proposed changes to its FM regulations and administrative practices. Practical experience with the Commission's policy on frequency modulation radio services has reached a final stage when certain minor revisions are necessary to complete implementation of the policy which came into effect on September 6, 1976 together with the current CRTC FM regulations.

Three proposed adjustments to the regulations involve permission for affiliated FM and AM stations to "simulcast" the same program material in circumstances of great public interest such as elections; they would allow FM stations some limited use of public service announcements during "foreground programming"; and they would simplify advertising regulations to allow greater freedom in the placement of commercial announcements without increasing the amount of advertising.

Adjustments proposed for administrative practices are concerned mainly with more specific phrasing of basic criteria used in measuring a station's program performance.

In today's announcements, the Commission noted that its proposals had taken into account representations made by members of the general public, the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, independent program producers and individual station operators. The proposed changes to the FM broadcasting regulation will be subject to public comment.

Copies of the complete text of this Public Announcement are available at the CRTC office, Central Building, Les Terrasses de la Chaudiere, 1, Promenade du Portage, Hull, Quebec, the Western Regional office, Suite 1130, 701 West Georgia Street, Vancouver, British Columbia, the Montreal Regional office, Suite 2114, 800 Victoria Place, Montreal, Quebec and the Atlantic Regional office, Room 428, Barrington Tower, 1894 Barrington Street, Scotia Square, Halifax, Nova Scotia.

The bidding:

Opening lead — king of clubs.

It seems normal for a defender who holds a very uninteresting hand to pay little more than scant attention to what goes on during the play. In fact, many defenders in this situation feel that they are meeting their obligations in full when they manage to follow suit as the play progresses.

But occasionally there are deals where a defender with a typically dull hand can play a very important role in the outcome. Instead of staying entirely out of the picture, he may sometimes assert his presence forcibly and deliver a telling blow.

For example, take this case were East did a lot with a little. West led the K-A of clubs, felling South's queen, and continued with the jack of clubs. it was at this point that East, whose hand you'd hardly want to write home about, rose briskly from his lethargy and ruffed partner's jack of clubs with the king of trumps!

As a result, South had to lose two trump tricks and go down one. Had East discarded on West's jack of clubs, declarer would have made the contract by ruffing low and playing the ace and another trump.

It is unusual for a defender to ruff his partner's high card in a side-suit with a card as powerful as the king of trumps, but the play was eminently correct here. East realized from both the bidding and the appearance of South's queen of clubs that his side could win no other tricks outside of trumps.

Ruffing his partner's high club with the king could not possibly cost East a trick, but would clearly gain one if West had either the Q-J, Q-10, or J-x of trumps. East's play is certainly easy enough to justify on the basis of sheer logic; the hard part was to think of it.

Shopping Centre Race Unfolding in Saanich?

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

A race may be shaping up between two developers in Saanich to see which can complete a major shopping centre first.

One group is the West Vancouver development company Cal Investments Ltd., which plans to build a 295,000-square-foot shopping centre including a major department store on the Tillicum drive-in theatre site at Burnside and Tillicum.

The other is a partnership of The Bay and Broadmead Farms Ltd. (a Guinness family company), which claims it is almost ready to make a formal application for a proposed 229,000-square-foot shopping centre east of the Patricia Bay Highway between Royal Oak Avenue and Royal Oak Drive.

Cal weathered a public hearing and won rezoning approval Monday night, whereas Bay-Broadmead won't be submitting its formal application to council's Advisory Planning Commission until May 17.

According to a spokesman for the latter, there's a significant advantage in being first, to capture a corner of the market and lure the nucleus of a clientele before the opposition.

"We're going to try to be on the ground before they are," says Vancouver planning consultant Howard Nemtin, the development manager for the Broadmead Village project.

"There's no question that there's an advantage in being first, because these are overlapping markets to some extent."

Nemtin added: "We're probably six to eight weeks behind the other guys but we can move very quickly (once Saanich approval is obtained)."

During Monday's public hearing Mayor Mel Couvelier commented that the Tillicum and Broadmead proposals were unrelated, but Nemtin disagrees.

"To say it (the Tillicum centre) has no effect on our proposal is not true," he said. "It may affect our timing and phasing."

Specifically, he said, it influences a decision as to the number of smaller stores that can be provided.

Nemtin stressed that the green light for the Cal Investments' project won't stop the Bay-Broadmead plans, but added: "I would have been happy if they hadn't approved it."

A spokesman for Cal Investments agreed Wednesday there is some overlap between the two market areas, but added: "There's no race on as far as we are concerned."

Company vice-president Jim Briggs said the Tillicum centre would serve primarily the immediate area, the western fringes of Saanich and Esquimalt. But Broadmead's location makes it an obvious focus for customers from northern parts of Saanich and the Saaninch Peninsula.

"If Broadmead goes ahead it will not affect our thinking one way or the other," he said. "We have our own market to serve."

He said it would take two or three months to complete working drawings and put the Tillicum project to tender.

Assuming no hitches, construction would probably start in the late fall and the company hoped the shopping centre would be open for business by the fall of 1980 or at the latest by the spring of 1981.

Meanwhile, a Victoria realtor told the Times there are still hopes that yet a third shopping centre can be developed — on the narrow strip of land between Seymour and Vernon — despite a setback earlier this week.

The Edmonton-based Campeau Corporation, owners of the Town and Country shopping centre, had planned to develop a retail-office complex on the other side of Seymour, linked to the present centre by an underground mall.

But the company cancelled its options and scrapped the project, informing Saanich Monday that land prices were too high.

Sharon Douglas of Vancouver Island Development Corporation, the agent hired by Campeau to assemble the land, commented: "I am going to see if I can get Campeau to have another look at it, if I can persuade the landowners to lower the price ($13 to $14 per square foot)."

In any case, she said, a group based in Eastern Canada and larger than Campeau has also expressed interest in developing the property commercially.

But the prospect of any commercial development in the so-called civic core area between Seymour and Vernon concerns the Victoria Labor Council, which believes it would lead to more congestion in the Blanshard Street corridor.

Labor Council delegates voted Wednesday night to write to Saanich council asking that the corridor be maintained as a traffic artery and not developed commercially.

Care and Culture Of the Wistaria

When the beautiful climbing Wistarias come into bloom (or fail to bloom) questions on their care and culture reach a peak. This column will answer the questions most frequently asked.

Two things the Wistaria does not like are transplanting and fertilizer. It suffers a setback when planted, but a strong plant soon recovers.

Fertilizer causes rampant growth at the expense of flowers. The only time to apply a general fertilizer if it is needed (not otherwise) is during late February. Because the root system is deep and extensive, a small amount of fertilizer has to be spread over a wide area.

The two best known species in this latitude are Wistaria sinensis (chinensis) from China, and W. floribunda (multijuga or macrobotrys) from Japan. These two have distinct characteristics.

W. sinensis has flower clusters 6 to 12 inches long, leaves with 7 to 13 large leaflets, no fragrance, no autumn coloring, flowers appear before the leaves, and vines twine from left to right.

W. floribunda has flower clusters to 48 inches in length, fragrant, 13 to 19 leaflets to a leaf, turns yellow in fall, leaves appear during flowering, vines twine from right to left.

The flowers of sinensis are large, the entire cluster opening within a few days, but fading in seven days, a brief but outstanding display. Flowers on floribunda are smaller, opening slowly down the long flower stem to the tip, giving a few fragrant blooms on each cluster over a period of three weeks.

Named varieties of floribunda have peach, pink, lilac, or white flowers, and the variety 'floraplena' large double blooms of deep violet. Sinensis is limited to purples and pure white.

Cultural practices recommended at the end of the last century are now considered harmful, and the culture followed for one part of the continent seems useless in another part.

All climbers climb to get above other plants; when planted in full sun they often remain bushes. Wistarias need a deeply dug humus-rich soil, and plenty of moisture. E. H. Wilson, studying the genus in China, found plants growing by pools and streams produced flower clusters 64 inches long. The two American species are both native to damp ground, one being a bog plant.

Under garden cultivation wistarias need pruning twice a year for good flowering. Rampant growths are cut back to four leaves (not leaflets) in July and August, and the shortened growths cut back to two growth buds in February-March until flower spurs develop.

Eventually these shortened growths will produce flower buds near their bases and the growth will become a flowering spur which continues to flower year after year. Flower spurs must never be cut off, but the extension growth beyond the flower buds is shortened a little at winter pruning.

The wistaria is a long lived plant and worth careful cultivation. Specimens are known over 100 years old covering hundreds of square feet, from a main stem 12 inches in diameter at soil level.

While fertilizer and lack of pruning are reasons for some of the poor specimens seen in local gardens, there is also the problem of plants raised from seed. All named varieties are grafted plants, therefore the most expensive. While sinensis comes fairly true from seed, there is great variation in florabunda seedlings, and cheap seedlings are expensive at any price.

The plants are ususlly offered for sale when three years old, 18 inches high with a cluster of leaves at the top. Two years after planting (5 years old) the first climbing vine appears, after which growth is rapid.

Gardeners who do not understand this habit of growth and try to force growth with fertilizer, or use poison sprays because the plant seems stunted and diseased, do more harm than good and will never have the pleasure of a flower-packed vine.

Basic Firefighter Training Is Still Two Years Away

B.C.'s new fire services academy will open its doors this fall but basic training for rookie firefighters is still two years away.

Director Carl (Bud) Kellett said in an interview the academy initially will only offer one- to three-week seminars for middle-management firemen, chiefs and deputies.

Kellett said the training centre, located in the same complex as the Police Academy at Jericho in Vancouver, is now in the process of hiring staff.

Openings are being advertised until May 18 for two top positions, an administrative manager and a manager of volunteers.

Kellett, who was in Victoria to attend the third annual Canadian conference of the International Association of Arson Investigators, said he expects about 1,000 of the province's 7,000 firefighters will attend courses at the academy in the first year of operation.

Eventually all firefighters may have to attend a training course, but for now enrolment is voluntary.

Kellett said he has set a 1981 target date to start a six-week basic training program for new recruits.

He said much work still remains. The basic curriculum hasn't been developed nor has the training site been prepared. Plans call for the construction of a training tower and purchase of equipment, including a 100-foot ladder truck and a pumper truck. He said special attention will be given to to training volunteer firemen who form the largest body of firefighters in the province numbering more than 4,000.

The establishment of an academy and emphasis on training volunteers were major recommendations of a royal commission study of fire services in the province completed by Dr. Hugh Keenleyside of Victoria four years ago.

First Regional Arson Office Opening Soon in Nanaimo

The B.C. Fire Commission will open a regional office in Nanaimo later this month as a first step towards decentralizing B.C.'s fire investigation service.

Fire Commissioner Gordon Anderson, speaking at the third annual Canadian conference of International Association of Arson Investigators in Victoria, said the Nanaimo office will be operated as a pilot project for six months to a year.

Two investigators and a supervisor have been assigned to the office which will serve all of Vancouver Island.

Anderson said if the project proves successful as many as four other offices may be opened across the province.

He said the regional scheme is only one of the aims of the commission which was formed last year along similar lines to the B.C. Police Commission.

Other aims include recommending adoption of the National Fire Code to the provincial government and promoting the Arson Alert Program which was announced by Attorney-General Garde Gardom last March 26.

Anderson said he is committed to making the public more aware of the growing arson problem in the province.

"The police have done a great job," he said. "But they haven't treated it with as high a profile as we would want it to be done."

Postal Union Aid Urged

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Jean-Claude Parrot, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, says a national organization should be set up to provide financial and militant support for union workers.

The organization would provide financial support during local strikes, warn employers that the use of scab labor would be protested by mass pickets and give local boycotts the support of millions of workers.

Parrot said employers discipline militant workers by firing, suspending or jailing them.

Conventional weapons were not adequate to combat such measures so "the challenge before us is to increase our industrial strength."

Meanwhile, inside postal workers will hold demonstrations Monday to protest the sentencing of Parrot who was convicted of defying a federal back-to-work order, the union's national chief steward said Tuesday.

Syd Baxter told a news conference the union wouldn't pull its members off the job for the demonstrations but predicted huge turnouts, especially in Ottawa where Parrot will be sentenced.

Parrot was convicted of defying an Oct. 19 Parliamentary order. The union had counselled its 23,000 members to stay off the job for seven days after the order to end the country-wide strike was issued.

Bugging Details Ignored

OTTAWA (UPC) — Former Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer told the McDonald Commission into RCMP wrongdoing that he was ready and willing to know generally who was being "electronically bugged", but he didn't want to know the details because his schedule was too busy.

Shortly after Goyer took over as solicitor-general in 1970 he demanded the RCMP supply a monthly report on who was being electroncially watched and why. "This was a type of control to make sure the RCMP was following the right priorities" to make sure everything was "kosher" and there weren't any "witch hunts going on", he said in his second day of testimony Wednesday.

However, under intense questioning from lawyers, commissioner Guy Gilbert and Justice D.C. McDonald, an angry Goyer bluntly said he didn't want to be informed about the operational side of installing devices although he had been told by the RCMP everything was legal.

"It wasn't my main concern how the devices were installed because they (the RCMP) were professionals — but I knew we might lose some face."

Goyer said he realized the installation was a "grey area" and there were certainly clandestine operations carried on by the RCMP. The Montreal lawyer said he was aware some officers might have to break down a door, make a key or pose as a plumber to gain entry to install the bugs or electronic listening devices.

"I did not want to be involved as long as it was legal and I was told by the RCMP and the justice department that it was," he said.

During one heated exchanged during the day-long hearing, Gilbert ruffled Goyer by insisting that he would have a better knowledge about his department if he knew how the electronic bugs were installed.

An angry Goyer said he was too busy attending to his duties as a cabinet minister, watching over the other sections of his department and attending committee meetings to be concerend with the day-to-day operations of the RCMP security forces.

250 Jobs In New Plant

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

The plant, jointly funded by the federal and provincial governments, will provide 250 jobs and bring a $4 million annual payroll into the area.

It signals the beginning of an aeronautics industry in B.C., said federal Industry, Trade and Commerce Minister Jack Horner.

Horner flew in for a sod-turning ceremony also attended by Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis.

The federal minister said besides the $4 million payroll, the factory will have a tremendous spinoff effect that will benefit the entire industry.

Horner said Canada can expect export sales to be as much as $10 million annually.

He said locating the plant at Victoria airport will reduce the concentration of the aircraft industry in eastern Canada.

The new 103,000-square-foot aircraft plant will be built through the B.C. Development Corporation for Trident Aircraft Ltd with low-interest loans from both the federal department of regional economic expansion and the provincial ministry of economic development.

It is the first small craft, general aviation plant in Canada and is expected to reach peak production by 1981.

The company plans to manufacture 10 amphibian planes called Trigulls a month at a cost of between $120,000 and $150,000 each.

The Trident-designed amphibian craft is a recreational-commercial ship with a six-seat capacity the company has been working on for the past eight years, according to chief executive officer Jerry Vaverek.

Vaverek said Trident expects export sales of 67 per cent to the U.S., with Canada taking 10 per cent and the rest of the sales to buyers around the world.

Powered by a basic 300 horsepower engine, the plane cruises at 140 knots and is capable of landing on land or sea, Vaverek said.

Border Broadcast Tax Laws to Stay

STANFORD, Calif. (CP) — Canadian Ambassador Peter Towe has warned that Canada is not prepared to bargain away its tax law on border broadcasting.

He hinted that Canada might take action against imports of U.S. records and television programs if the American broadcasting industry tries to use undue pressure.

And if U.S. legislators try to use a U.S. law affecting convention attendance in Canada to lift the Canadian restraint on advertising on U.S. border stations, they will be bound to fail, Towe told a Canadian-U.S. seminar at Stanford University.

"The logic of linking these two questions is as frail as the chance that the Canadian government will give way on a matter central to Canada's identity," Towe added as the seminar opened Wednesday.

The 1976 Canadian measure prohibits Canadian companies from making tax deductions for advertisements placed on a U.S. border television station. Towe said the measure was necessary to promote the development of Canada's broadcasting industry.

Congress this year is again considering legislation to exempt Canada from provisions of a 1976 law limiting tax deductions for attending foreign conventions to two trips a year. The law has cost Canada millions of dollars in lost tourist revenue.

Canada is concerned that, as in the past, some legislators may attempt to link U.S. action on the convention issue to Canadian action on the tax affecting border broadcasters.

U.S. broadcasters affected by the law filed a petition last year charging that the tax is unfair and seeking retaliation against Canada.

In a veiled warning, Towe noted that Canadian networks spend more than $50 million a year buying rights to U.S. television programs. In 1976, record sales in Canada totalled $300 million.

"When the border stations talk of retaliation ... it should be made known that the balance of potential injury in the entertainment industry at least lies clearly on the American side."

Philip Habib, U.S. undersecretary of state now acting as diplomat-in-residence at Stanford, said that despite a few minor irritants, Canada-U.S. relations are "the best they have been in a long time."

Habib said the Alaska natural gas pipeline, the Great Lakes water quality agreement and a resolution of the cross-border fish dispute indicate how successful the two countries have been in "getting serious matters out of the way."

Towe said he focused on the attempt to link the tax issues because he felt that once Americans understand the Canadian point of view, "there will be no further effort ... to use undue pressure to force Canadians to change a very important principle in our cultural policy."

False Teeth To Animals To Ashes

A ring worth $363,636 and a purse containing marijuana were also among found items.

The railroad said cash left behind in its trains and stations hit an all-time record of 2.4 billion yen ($10.9 million), up 7 percent over the previous year.

Gas-Less Weekend?

Times News Services

Buying gasoline on the weekend of May 17-20 may be difficult in many parts of the United States, including Washington state, if service station owners are successful in their plans for a "gas-less weekend" to protest against federal controls on their prices.

The weekend is not only a holiday weekend in Canada, for Victoria Day, but also in the U.S. for Memorial Day.

The idea originated in California, where most dealers are expected by industry officials to participate, and since has spread to other states, including Connecticut, Illinois, Idaho, Iowa, Nevada, Louisiana and Arizona, as well as Washington, said officials of state dealer associations.

The aim of the gasoline-less weekend is to force the government to loosen controls on the mark-up gasoline stations are allowed to take on sales of gasoline. That mark-up, known as "dealer margin," cannot now exceed the amount it was in May, 1973, plus three cents. Dealers also have been allowed to add small amounts to cover some other costs.

The dealers want the current system replaced with a straight 25 per cent mark-up over the wholesale price of gasoline.

"It wasn't our intention to hurt the public, but we don't know what else we can do," said Don Skilling, a spokesman for the California Service Station Association, which represents 2,000 of the state's 14,000 dealers.

Meanwhile, sharply higher prices for gasoline and heating oil cancelled a dramatic improvement in food costs during April as wholesale prices in the U.S. climbed 0.9 per cent — the fifth straight month of double-digit inflation.

Gasoline prices shot up 4.4 per cent, the largest rise since August, 1975, and have now surged 9.8 per cent during the past three months alone.

Furthermore, home heating oil jumped 6.7 per cent to raise the three-month increase to almost 13 per cent, a particularly gloomy statistic for northeastern states.

Voters Chilled

LONDON (CP) — Britons braved foul weather to vote for a new government today with final opinion polls predicting a Conservative victory, ending five years of Labor power.

Despite unseasonable chilling winds, sleet and snow, there was a brisk start when polling stations opened.

Three polls forecast margins of 5.7 to seven percentage points for Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives over Prime Minister James Callaghan's Labor party.

Midway through the voting, British bookmakers reported a rush of bets on the Conservatives to win, including one wager of 20,000 pounds ($48,000) placed with the Joe Carol betting firm.

This tightened the odds on a Tory victory. From 1 to 3 at the start of the day, they went to 1 to 6 in the afternoon, meaning a bettor would stake 6 and get back only 1, plus his stake money, if the Tories win.

London's Stock Exchange also responded to the poll forecasts and sent the Financial Times index of 30 leading industrial stocks up by 11.1 points to 555.9 at midday, topping the highest-ever close of 552.7 on April 25.

Gov't Wage Fight Looms

B.C.'s 38,000 government employees are prepared for a confrontation with their employer over the issue of wages during upcoming contract negotiations, a union spokesman said Wednesday.

John Fryer, general secretary of the B.C. Government Employees Union, said in an interview the majority of the union members feel they have been short-changed in the wage department over the past two years.

At the same time, there is every indication the government is prepared to hold the line and "force another inferior settlement."

Fryer said his members are coming off two years of federal wage controls which has resulted in a serious erosion of the purchasing power of the employees' pay cheques.

Those in the private sector are getting acceptable "catch-up" settlements, he said, and there is no reason why government employees should have to settle for substandard agreements.

Although the situation could change after the May 10 election, Fryer feels the government is going to try and limit the wage increases of his members to between three and five per cent in one year.

The government is currently in negotiations with the 1,000-member B.C. Government Professional Employees Association, and its

NANAIMO BOMB SUSPECT HELD

A 31-year-old Vancouver man is to appear in provincial court in Nanaimo in connection with the bomb-threat robbery of the B.C. Ferries ticket office at Departure Bay Wednesday morning.

The suspect was arrested in a Nanaimo motel at 3:30 p.m., about five hours after a man hurled a silver-colored package into the ticket office telling the agent it was a bomb and demanding money.

He grabbed about $900 and fled in a van which police found an hour later parked on a residential street a quarter-mile from the scene.

In their search for the bandit, police brought in a helicopter, tracking dogs, and set up roadblocks on major roads leading out of the city.

$30 Million Approved For RJH Renovations

The first stage of Royal Jubilee Hospital's major renovation project will begin immediately with government approval today of close to $30 million in funding.

The provincial government has committed itself to the entire four phases of long-term project that will change virtually every aspect of the existing facility, Victoria Socred MLA Sam Bawlf said in making the announcement.

The $30 million spending announced today is in addition to $9 million for initial renovations approved by the province in February.

Assistant director of regional hospital planning, Bill Pennington, said the commission is pleasantly surprised at the extent of the initial funding.

It will allow the hospital to complete Phase I of the project including a new block for diganostic and treatment services and major renovations and expansion in other areas.

The regional hospital planning commission approved the long-term project in March and forwarded the plan to the provincial hospital programs branch for study and cost analysis.

That branch okayed the project subject to approval by Health Minister Bob McClelland.

IWA, Forest Firms Angered by Article

Both sides in the B.C. forest industry contract talks have blasted the Wall Street Journal for a recent story saying the parties doubt a strike can be averted.

Forest Industrial Relations (FIR), representing 120 coast companies, labelled the story "an example of totally irresponsible journalism."

A spokesman for the International Woodworkers of America said it was "a stupid, bum story."

The story, written by Leonard Zehr, appeared in the west coast edition of the Wall Street Journal on April 19, the day preliminary negotiations began.

FIR spokesman Chris Crombie said today Zehr never talked to the employers' group.

Far from being negative about the negotiations, which begin in earnest on Monday, both sides have said that although they expect the talks to be tough they are optimistic a settlement can be reached at the bargaining table, Crombie said.

FIR chairman Don Saunders has written a letter to the Journal expressing that fact and labelling the story irresponsible.

He says the erroneous nature of the story is made worse by the fact that it ran in a publication of such high stature as the Journal.

Saunders also expressed concern about the damaging effect the story might have on the B.C. industry.

He said the story has been circulated internationally through the Dow Jones news wire and a confrontation story of this kind "plays into the hands of our competitors."

Saunders asked the paper for an explanation of the story and also for the publication of another article which will provide an accurate assessment of the situation.

IWA spokesman Cliff Perry said today in Vancouver: "We're concerned about it appearing in the international press because it does some damage to the industry."

He said contract talks with the industry are difficult enough without press reports predicting doom and gloom.

The IWA, said Perry, has an excellent record when it comes to succesfully negotiating contracts.

"Over the past 20 years we've been out a total of 4 weeks ... this is something the public doesn't really appreciate."

Toronto

Trading in Coseka Resources Ltd. resumed at 11 a.m. following a halt called at the opening. The company said previously-announced discussions with Brinco Ltd. on a possible combination of assets of the two companies have terminated. Coseka's stock fell ¾ to $7¼ by 2 p.m.

Trading was also halted at the opening in shares of Brinco and Conuco Ltd. They resumed trading at 1 p.m. Brinco said it has agreed in principle to merge with Conuco. By 2 p.m., Brinco rose ¼ to $7⅜ and Conuco fell ¼ to $6.

New York

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks gained 3.72 to 859.23 two-thirds of the way through the trading day. The index closed unchanged Wednesday.

Casino and gambling stocks were among the stand-out issues.

Ramada Inns, up ⅛ to $14, topped the NYSE active trading list. The firm said its proposal for an Atlantic City, N.J. casino had been approved by the city planning council.

Holiday Inns, gained ⅜ to $21, and Caesars World jumped 4 to $78¼, also in active trading. Among less active casino issues, Bally rose 1 to $78¾. The maker of casino equipment said its stockholders approved a 2-for-1 stock split.

Among other issues, General Public Utilities slipped ⅛ to $10⅝.

London

The Financial Times index of 30 industrials closed at 553.5, up 8.7. Dealers said profit-taking reduced some stock prices, which had been pushed higher on speculative demand prompted by opinion polls indicating a win for the Conservative party in Thursday's general election.

Banks and industrials rose sharply while golds were narrowly higher.

Canadian shares were mixed.
